'Breach of faith' by Saanich

By LORRAINE LOCHERTY

A Saanich decision to allow developers to almost double the size of Tillicum Shopping Centre came under heavy attack today from the Capital Region District and Victoria city council.

Angry Capital Region District directors are threatening court action while city aldermen say they will organize a protest campaign.

CRD chairman James Campbell and Colwood director Howard Drummond called removal of a restrictive covenant limiting the size of the shopping complex a show of bad faith.

Saanich will allow developers Cal Investments Ltd. to add 200,000 square feet to its development.

Victoria Mayor Bill Tindall said he was dumbfounded to hear Saanich has reversed its position.

A protest campaign among downtown Victoria businessmen and property owners will be organized by Ald. Ron McKenzie, Tindall said.

"It seems to me to be a total act of bad faith," Ald. Bob Wright, chairman of council's land use planning committee, said. " I find it extremely frustrating. It's a tragedy, it's just too bad."

Saanich Mayor Mel Couvelier, who voted against the proposal, said today he also considers the Tillicum expansion a breach of faith.

"We had an understanding at the CRD level and I was party to it. So in all conscience I couldn't revise my stand," Couvelier said.

But Couvelier said he doesn't care what Victoria thinks.

The same loophole in the regional plan that allowed city council to approve expansion of Mayfair shopping centre made it possible for Saanich to approve the Tillicum addition, he said.

"The city fouled their own nest with the Mayfair thing," Couvelier commented.

Council voted 5-4 to remove a restrictive covenant and allow Cal Investments to increase the size of the centre to 495,000 square feet, making it the largest on southern Vancouver Island.

The new plan includes an Eatons department store. Eatons also announced Monday a three-year, $4 million plan to renovate and expand to its downtown store.

Couvelier agreed that expanding the $30 million Tillicum centre will increase the municipal tax base.

"But at the same time I did feel I was part of negotiations with the CRD and didn't feel I could support the proposal for that reason."

Campbell said the restrictive covenant was one reason the regional board dropped a lawsuit against Saanich over the hotly-contested development.

"While it wasn't the entire reason for withdrawing legal action, it was a factor in some directors' minds," Campbell said in a phone interview.

The shopping centre will be built on a 30-acre site formerly occupied by the Tillicum Drive-In theatre. The centre includes Zellers, Simpson Sears and Safeway stores as well as a number of small specialty shops.

Construction should be completed by the fall of 1981.

Couvelier said he hopes the massive shopping centre won't have a negative impact on a regional shopping centre planned for Jacklin Road in Langford.

Ald. John Mika, Robert Cameron and Howard Sturrock also voted against the expansion.

Quebec votes May 20

QUEBEC (CP) — The referendum asking Quebecers to give the provincial government a mandate to negotiate sovereignty-association will be held May 20, Premier Rene Levesque announced today.

Levesque told the national assembly the referendum writs had been issued today, and the campaign would last the minimum 35 days permitted under the Referendum Act.

The premier called on Quebecers to vote yes and assured voters that all he was asking for "is a mandate to negotiate a new agreement and not to realize a new agreement."

U.S. wants NATO help as Iran flank heats up

Times News Services

The United States asked its NATO allies Monday to step up their defence efforts, saying Washington may have to divert military power to the Persian Gulf or Indian Ocean in case of hostilities.

Meanwhile, the Soviet Union is reported moving military forces into an area north of Iran, Zbigniew Brzezinski, President Carter's national security adviser, says.

Brzezinski quoted "credible reports" as saying the Soviet forces have moved into the Transcaucasus area, but he gave no figures on the number of troops involved.

In another development, probably related to the Afghan and Iranian crises, Pentagon officials said today that a combat force of Soviet marines has arrived in the Indian Ocean for the first time.

At least 400 marines — called naval infantry — were reported aboard Russia's biggest amphibious assault ship, the 13,000-ton Ivan Rogov. The Rogov entered the Indian Ocean through the Strait of Malacca on Monday after a long voyage from Russia's main Far East naval base at Vladivostok.

An American official in Brussels, said the U.S. suggested long-term measures the members of the NATO could undertake to fill a gap the U.S. armed forces would create if they had to be redeployed. The official asked not to be identified.

He stressed the U.S. "did not discuss in any way, shape or form . . . action in the Persian Gulf," but outlined to its allies how they could help in the NATO area.

President Carter has left open the possibility of the U.S. going to war to assure the continued flow of oil, which Washington considers part of its vital interests.

In an interview Monday night on the Public Broadcasting System's McNeil-Lehrer Report, Brzezinski said the latest Soviet activity is similar to the build-up last December which preceded the Russian military occupation of Afghanistan.

Soviet forces occupied the northern sector of Iran for a year after the end of the Second World War, finally withdrawing only under heavy diplomatic pressure from the United States and other countries.

Commitment of the Russian marines to the tense region follows deployment of a battalion of 1,800 U.S. marines into the Indian Ocean in mid-March aboard a U.S. Navy amphibious warfare group.

In Tehran, the militants holding American hostages in said today humanitarian organizations such as Amnesty International would be allowed to visit the captives.

A militant spokesman made the statement after two Red Cross officials examined the captives' health and living conditions on Monday. One of the Red Cross members, Dr. Bernard Liebeskind, went to Geneva today to report his findings to the International Committee of the Red Cross.

It was the most extensive visit by any foreigners to the captive Americans since militant young Iranians seized the embassy and its staff last Nov. 4.

Nuptual layoff bares a payoff

LOS ANGELES (LAT) — The estranged wife of Saudi Arabian financier Adnan Khashoggi said Monday that her husband provided Swiss bank accounts, prostitutes and other gifts to some California corporate executives whose companies did business in the Middle East kingdom.

The allegations by Soraya Khashoggi, were made in support of her $2.5 billion breach of contract suit in Los Angeles Superior Court last August, seeking half of the $4 billion she said he acquired during their marriage, plus $540 million in damages.

The 27-page declaration names three California companies that had business dealings, or discussions with Khashoggi and implies that they were among the recipients.

Spokesmen for the companies — Litton Industries, Beverly Hills; Lockheed Corp., Burbank, and Northrop Corp., Los Angeles — either denied the allegations or said they hadn't enough information to comment.

The declaration alleged that Khashoggi:

— Opened numbered Swiss bank accounts that he called "sweeteners" for some California executives.

— Had his employees act as pimps to procure prostitutes for "certain of these California executives."

— Had his employees act as male prostitutes "to have affairs in California with female secretaries of executives of certain of these California companies so that during pillow talk the men (Khashoggi's employees) could learn what the other parties to Adnan's California negotiations were planning."

Liberals vow swift action

OTTAWA (CP) — The government will move quickly this week to introduce some of the major legislation promised in Monday's throne speech.

A list of 20 bills scheduled for quick introduction includes legislation to increase the guaranteed income supplements to poor pensioners by $35, a Liberal election promise, and to set up a labor information bureau.

It also includes legislation in the works for more than a year, such as long-planned revisions to the Bank Act, bankruptcy legislation and repealing a trade agreement that contributed to the champagne war with France.

Proposed action in all three areas died before both the May 22 and Feb. 18 elections.

Government House Leader Yvon Pinard said the Liberals also will seek approval to spend money in the next several weeks.

Neither spending estimates for the fiscal year that ended March 31 nor for the one that began April 1 have been approved.

The increased income supplements are to be included in amendments to the Old Age Security Act.

While provincial premiers lamented the lack of specific strategy to cope with ever-rising interest rates, Canadian businessmen and economists were cautiously favorable to the throne speech.

The speech promised Canada that the 1980s would be "a decade of opportunity" and offered three initial stepping stones — help for homeowners, constitutional reform and increased Canadian ownership of industry.

B.C.Premier Bill Bennett said he was not impressed.

"My concern is what's left out," he told a press conference. "I see no answer to the Bank of Canada's high interest rates nor any firm resolution by the present government to deal with the Bank of Canada."

Bennett said the throne speech suggests there is a need for the west to be represented in national institutions and the place to start is the Bank of Canada.

"The promise to reduce the federal deficit is commendable," said Sidney Dolgoy, a senior economist with the Toronto Dominion Bank.

But he expressed doubt it was possible, given the size of the assistance programs proposed by the speech.

A spokesman for the housing industry says he is optimistic about federal government assistance for

Nurse inquiry but no strings

Both sides in the government nurses' dispute have agreed to a proposal by Labor Minister Jack Heinrich to appoint an industrial inquiry commission to bring in non-binding recommendations.

Heinrich, who met with both sides for several hours Monday, said they have agreed to co-operate and make commission hearings meaningful and productive.

Bawlf, McGeer stung by poll

A Times public opinion poll showing Victoria residents overwhelmingly against a fixed link between Vancouver Island and the mainland has stung the scheme's two strongest proponents, former Socred cabinet minister Sam Bawlf and Science Minister Pat McGeer, into strong reaction.

"What the Times has accumlated is very interesting but every politican knows that write-in campaigns are anything but representative of general opinion," McGeer said Monday.

"I would be very surprised if an objective survey were even close to those results."

McGeer suggested such a survey would reverse the result of the Times poll, which found 71 per cent of 1,712 respondents were against the idea of a bridge-tunnel link with the mainland.

McGeer offered no evidence to back his conclusion.

Bawlf, a former member of the Socred cabinet and the prime mover of the fixed-link proposal, goes even further than McGeer.

He promises to provide "scientific" survey results that completely refute the Times' poll.

Bawlf said the mail-in response from Times readers obviously cannot be viewed as a statistically accurate poll of any area of Vancouver Island, including Victoria.

He commissioned a poll of his own 10 days ago and said the preliminary results are very different from the Times survey.

He declined to give details.

"Let's just say I'm smiling."

Bawlf said his poll is a comprehensive survey conducted by a national polling organization — which he wouldn't name — using sophisticated survey techniques.

Seven questions were put, he said, to a cross-section of the Island population.

Bawlf was critical of the Times' poll being taken be-homeowners facing high interest rates when they renegotiate mortgages.

George Frieser of Calgary, president of the Housing and Urban Development Association of Canada, said despite only vague reference in to homeowner assistance, the government appears to be focusing on the problems of homeowners.

Frieser said he is adopting a "wait and see" attitude" toward the government acceptance of a recent association proposal for temporary mortgage interest assistance for home purchasers.

"We're very optimistic," he said. "Our program is one that is visible."

However, Michael Galway, executive director of the Canadian Institute of Public Real Estate Companies, said the provisions to provide government help to homeowners are "a first step but not really sufficient."

"The government has recognized the problem in principle that excessive damage has been done," he said.

And he said Ottawa was justified in selecting homeowners, farmers and small businessmen as groups particularly vulnerable.

But "an even more serious part of the problem remains" as a result of high interest rates, Galway said. Canada faces "an imminent and dramatic slowdown in new home construction" which will adversely affect new homeowners as well as the employment situation.

Quebec Premier Rene Levesque, perhaps the most vocal critic of the government's announcement, said the Liberals' approach to job creation and the interest-rate crisis "shows a fuzziness that at no point goes beyond the level of pious intentions."

As for the speech's promise to Quebecers that constitutional reform will be a priority if there is a no vote in the sovereignty-association referendum, Levesque said the vagueness of the wording revealed the confusion of the federalist forces.

Some provincial leaders voiced their disappointment with the lack of attention to details of constitutional change. Roy Romanow, Saskatchewan's intergovernmental affairs minister, said the speech revealed no change in Liberal philosophy and maintained the status quo.

Peckford of Newfoundland also described the speech as a list. "It lacks vision or attitudes of how Confederation is going to evolve and evolve it must."

One perennial promise of the Trudeau government — to remove criminal penalties for the use of marijuana — was included for the first time in a throne speech. It met with little positive response from the provinces.

Sections of the speech dealing with energy provided a familiar arena for disagreement between Ontario and Alberta. Ontario Premier William Davis said the speech indicated the Liberals are dealing with Canada's need for a clear policy on oil prices as well as a national energy policy.

Alberta Energy Minister Merv Leitch said there appeared to be little new on energy matters in the speech. However, he applauded the Liberals' intention to increase Canadian ownership of the petroleum industry by 1990 to 50 per cent from 25 per cent.

Federal opposition leaders were alternately cautious and skeptical about the contents of the speech. Many measures were recycled election promises or warmed-over pledges from previous Liberal administrations under Trudeau.

Progressive Conservative Leader Joe Clark called the speech "a very interesting list" but called for details and the presentation of a budget within weeks. The Liberals have indicated it may be fall before a budget is brought down.

NDP Leader Ed Broadbent said the Liberals, in addressing high interest rates and Canadian control of industry, were simply dealing with problems of their own creation.

Dan Horigan, president of the Canadian Organization of Small Business, said that "judging from today's throne speech, the government has its priorities all screwed up."

"Much has been said about intended social legislation — all of which we have to pay for. Nothing is said about creating the new wealth needed to pay the bills."

"It certainly doesn't make up for their lack of constructive action on interest rates," he said in a statement. "Many small businesses are drowning and they don't even look for life preserver."

Roger Hamel, vice-chairman of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, said he is concerned with indications the new government will not be pulling out of the marketplace.

The speech "seems to tend towards interventionism, protectionism and nationalism, and that's not positive," Hamel said.

fore the public had all the facts. His own survey was taken at the same time.

His questionaires were completed on the weekend and are presently being tabulated by computer.

Bawlf said the final results will first go to cabinet and then should be made public in about a week.

"I will be paying for it, along with a few friends, none of them — including myself — having any remunerative interest in construction of a fixed link."

The friends are local businessmen and others who passed the hat so they could get an accurate picture of what the total adult population of Vancouver Island feels on the fixed link issue.

Bawlf said his poll will provide that picture.

Bawlf said of the Times' survey: "I'm frankly surprised there weren't more people opposed to the idea. Some 1,200 people opposed isn't enough to turn off the idea, particularly when you consider there are more than 2,000 ferry workers."

The he quickly denied his comment was a suggestion that ferry workers had somehow loaded the results of the survey.

"I'm not suggesting anything. I'm just saying one would expect a good deal more people than that to be opposed," he said.

Air Canada 8% fare hike on U.S. routes proposed

TORONTO (CP) — Air Canada announced plans Monday to increase fares between Canadian and U.S. cities by eight per cent May 1.

An airline spokesman cited rising costs of fuel, labor and other expenses as reasons for the proposed increase.

Examples of proposed one-way economy fares from Toronto with existing fares in brackets include: Miami $174 ($161), Los Angeles $331 ($246), Boston $89 ($83), Chicago $86 ($79) and New York $80 ($74).

The increase is subject to federal government approval, but the spokesman said there have been no notices of objections or public hearings since Air Canada applied for the increases Feb. 28.

Police said the robbers waited outside the fourth floor offices of Gemco Ltd., placed handcuffs and gags on arriving employees, took keys to the safe, collected cut and uncut gems.

Liberals blithely stroke for votes

OTTAWA — There were enough black limousines on Parliament Hill Monday morning, half of them with motors running to shield their chauffeurs from Ottawa's April chill, to keep happy all the shieks in Kuwait.

The Hansard reporter who resembles Elke Sommer was tanned and ravishing.

Joe Clark, afforded the same standing ovation by his backbenchers as the Grits gave P. E. Recyclement, showed he had lost none of his nervous laugh. And, wonder of wonders, Liberal Science Minister John Roberts has finally lost all his baby fat.

In other words, it is what passes for spring in the nation's capital as the Natural Governing Party resumes its traditional role: flopping like a beached salmon to yet another stance in hopes of finding out where it wants to go.

The Liberals, masters of the meandering centre, displayed both in their housekeeping as in their promises their ability to soothe and stroke political dissenters.

Where was Bryce Mackasey, left out of the cabinet fold, positioned in the new Commons seating plan? Tucked in the front row in a cranny of the cabinet, ministers to the right of him, ministers behind him, the Edsel from Lincoln close enough to touch the hem of the garment, too close ever to rebel.

Where was Don Macdonald, the once and future stalking horse who was hung out to dry by Mr. Trudeau? Nicely stationed in a good Senate chair to view the Evocations from the Throne, positioned shrewdly within the Liberal Establishment flock, stroked for yet another day to come.

The Liberal ability to head blithely in whatever direction they think the votes may lie was amply displayed in a Throne Speech that, in defiance of Mr. Trudeau's recent track record, was packed to the gunwales with promises for those in minority positions in society.

There was something for most everyone — except possibly men.

There were promises to youth, to pensioners, to native Indians, potsmokers, people who mail letters — but most of all, to women.

The government that has only two women in cabinet (only one in a senior post) has amazingly — in 1980 — discovered the feminist movement.

Women are mentioned five different times in the treatise laid out by the prime minister's dull factotem. Their wants, their needs, their desires, their hopes, their dreams — the suddenly-solicitous Reincarnates have discovered where 50 per cent of the vote resides.

It is as if a plumber from Iona ampagnola's employ had broken into the PMO and insert some revolutionary jargon to be shoved down Ed Schreyer's throat. Maureen McTeer undermined again.

Even more remarkable than Pierre Trudeau's discovery of the needs of the other sex was his discovery of his former self.

One gets the impression, him headed for the barn, that he will try one last fling with the true Liberalism that he ushered in in 1968 before subsiding into the sump-hole of easily-dispensed power.

Here's a new Petroleum Price Auditing Agency to investigate oil company profits and levels of Canadian ownership (the level the Liberals under Trudeau let slide. Hell, sink.)

Here's a new Canada Oil and Gas Act to provide preferential rights for Petro-Can and other Canadian companies.

Here's a "specific goal" of at least 50 per cent Canadian ownership of the petroleum industry by 1990 — by a government that has allowed Canada to be the most foreign-controlled modern nation in the world.

Here's an amendment to the Foreign Investment Review Act to review how large foreign firms are in fact bringing any benefits to Canada.

Here, in truth, is a government vowing to reform all those nasty things allowed all those previous years by Canadian governments, which happened to be, ahem, Liberal.

So "the stake of Canadians in their own economic destiny must be strengthened"? So we are indeed to be gifted with Freedom of Information legislation? A bill of rights? An examination of the unfair (both to Quebec and western Canada) electoral system?

What we have, really, is a Liberal party threatened with extinction as a national body because of its barren prospects in the West — where the slowly surging NDP is now the opposition party on both federal and provincial levels.

So the Liberals, always with the automatic stick-shift, move left.

All those promises are like all those limousines on the Hill — the ones with their motors mindlessly idling.

Trans Mountain stresses less spill risk

SEATTLE (AP) — Trans Mountain Oil Pipe Line Corp. says its proposal to transport oil from the Olympic Peninsula to the Midwest would mean less risk of oil spills in Washington state waters.

The Vancouver-based corporation, which filed a detailed application Monday with the state Energy Facility Site Evaluation Council, said its proposed oil port east of Port Angeles would include a tie-in to refineries in Skagit and Whatcom counties.

That would eliminate the need for tankers to travel between the Strait of Juan de Fuca and inland waters at the head of Puget Sound, the application said. More than 120 tankers make that trip each year.

"Because of the navigation risks associated with the longer transit to northern Puget Sound, there will be a reduced probability of tanker accidents and oil spill in the area," the application said.

Trans Mountain says without its project, a spill greater than 10,000 barrels is likely every 43 years. But with the project, such a spill is likely only once every 202 years.

Trans Mountain is among four competing pipeline firms wanting to move Alaskan crude oil from the West Coast to the Midwest. One of the firms, Northern Tier Pipeline Co., is the subject of hearings before the siting council now. Its proposal, though endorsed by the federal government, does not include a tie-up to Washington refineries.

Trans Mountain has financial backing from Arco, Chevron, Gulf, Imperial and Shell oil companies.

Its plan proposes a pipeline which, after crossing Marrowstone, Whidbey and Camano islands, would carry oil north into B.C. where it would tie into an existing pipeline to Edmonton. Another existing line would carry the oil to Midwest refineries.

Sprayers told checks too lax

VERNON (CP) — Provincial agencies which applied the herbicide 2,4-D in Okanagan lakes last year did not take adequate measures to ensure that beaches treated were safe before being reopened to public swimming, environmentalists told the provincial pesticide control appeal board Monday.

The board is hearing appeals on a plan by the environment ministry to use 2,4-D to control Eurasian milfoil in Kalamalka and Woods Lakes in the Okanagan this spring.

The government said it plans to spend about $1 million to apply 1,800 kilograms of the chemical.

Dr. John Warnock of the South Okanagan Environmental Coalition said Monday that studies his group has done show the risk to health is not worth it because the herbicide does not even control the plant effectively.

He said the coalition advocates use of mechanical harvesters to rid the lakes of the noxious weed, which grows rapidly, clogging recreational and fishing areas.

Dr. Ruth Shear, a Seattle researcher, said that 2,4-D may cause cancer.

She said her opinion is based on her own studies of 2,4-D use and a review by international agencies.

She said it could also cause miscarriages and birth defects such as brain and muscular damage in a fetus.

Warnock also said the coalition is not asking that the herbicide be banned — but that its use is completely inappropriate.

Pollution threatens pulp mill

NANAIMO (CP) — A $27-million coal port proposed for construction at Boat Harbor is causing concern at the nearby Harmac pulp mill.

MacMillan Bloedel Ltd., owner of the 1,450-employee mill is concerned that coal dust from the proposed port might adversely affect the mill's high quality kraft pulp operation.

Bob Findlay, mill manager, said Monday that he is concerned about any endeavor in the area that might be detrimental to the mill's operation.

"We haven't decided to do anything yet, but we certainly will have a close look at the terrain and prevailing wind conditions to determine whether the proposed coal port would interfere with our operation, he said."

Hatchery offered

HUDSON'S HOPE (CP) — B.C. Hydro will build a rainbow trout hatchery as part of its Site One dam compensation program.

The hatchery, to be capable of producing 50,000 trout a year, will be near the G. M. Shrum generating station near here in northeast B.C., Environment Minister Stephen Rogers has announced after a tour of the Peace Canyon (Site One) and Bennett Dams. Cost of the project was not disclosed.

The minister said sport fishing catches and general fish populations will be closely monitored in the reservoir over the next five years to determine if the hatchery site should be made permanent.

Yes, but how?

Speeches from the Throne have, over the past few years, become more and more vague, offering the public little advance knowledge of the government's plans and programs.

Yesterday's federal Throne Speech was a welcome break from this tradition, setting forward, in general terms at least, a fair number of the government's goals for the upcoming session of Parliament.

The question that remains, on nearly all the items in the speech, is: Yes, but how?

The Throne Speech explains the goals and objectives, but gives no indication of just what programs the government plans to use to achieve them.

How are homeowners hit by "unacceptably high mortgage rates" to benefit from new government programs?

How is the government to finance the extra $35 per month payments to the 1.3 million poor old-age pensioners?

How is the government to ensure that half the petroleum industry in Canada is owned by Canadians by 1990?

How is the government going to help Canadians in buying out foreign-owned companies?

How are the new programs of auotmobile fuel-efficiency standards and home-insulation standards to work?

How will the government implement its promise of freedom-of-information legislation, and how much access will Canadians be given to government information under it?

How will the details of a "Made-in-Canada" oil price work?

Many more questions of the same nature could be asked. Until the Trudeau administration introduces its legislation on these subjects, it will be difficult for Canadians to tell whether real action will be coming from the government or whether the goals will remain little more than unfulfilled promises.

As Conservative leader Joe Clark points out, it is noteworthy also that nothing in the throne speech indicates the government's position on major economic issues of the day — over-all interest rates, inflation, unemployment, or productivity. A full statement on these matters — whether through a budget or some other means — is a necessary complement to the throne speech to let the people know the economic directions the government plans to take. Canadians should not be expected to wait until next fall to learn this.

The details of the government's legislative program will be virtually meaningless if they are not backed up by a strong program to bring greater stability and control to the economy.

The throne speech shows that the government's intentions are good, but good intentions will not be enough to solve the many problems facing Canada. It will be some months before Canadians find out whether the new Trudeau administration can back its intentions up with strong legislative and economic steps.

It could be worse

Foreign affairs commentators have been holding up the incident at the Peruvian Embassy in Havana as testimony to the deplorable state of the Cuban economy under the Fidel Castro's government. The revolution and the following years as a satellite of the Soviet Union have failed, they say.

Ten thousand people suffering under the hot Caribbean sun in the confined space of the embassy compound while waiting for entry visas to Peru or any country that will have them certaintly does show that Cuban life leaves something to be desired. People in the west see the refugees as making a break for freedom, both economic and political.

The situation reaffirms our belief in our own way of life and the conviction that communism, at least the Soviet Union-Cuban variety, is no way to run a country.

We can sympathize with the plight of the refugees and hope they successfully emigrate to another land. Yet, to give Castro his due, it is worth noting that he is not standing in their way. He has told them that they will be allowed to leave.

If the same scenario was being played in Moscow, it's not difficult to imagine that 10,000 dissidents would treated in a slightly different manor. Politically Castro may line-up behind the minds in the Kremlin, but he hasn't as yet banished any of the dissidents to "closed" cities, "re-orientation" institutions or "work" projects.

Racial hatred

The Ku Klux Klan has been in the news lately, and as a result, the racial question has come to the fore. We have to be very careful when dealing with race issues. If by racism (or racialism, if we like) we mean the preservation of one's race and culture, it is a good thing and should be encouraged, especially if it leads to racial harmony. If, on the other hand, we mean by that term racial hatred, then it is to be condemned unsparingly.

However, bad and all as racial hatred happens to be, religious hatred is by far the more vicious, as the religious bigot or fanatic regards all who differ from him as enemies of God.

The odd thing is that while we condemn groups which preach and practise racial prejudice, we are very tolerant of the Zionists, who are perhaps the worst race haters of all! The so-called "State of Israel" is built upon racial and religious prejudice, in that it has driven most of the Arabs of Palestine from their homes and refuses to allow them back, as the Zionists want a purely Jewish state.

No, we don't want the KKK here in B.C., as we have achieved racial harmony in our province, especially with the Chinese, who are exemplary citizens.

Perhaps the worst aspect of the KKK is their loud profession of the Christian faith and belief in the Bible, while displaying an attitude and spirit more in keeping with the adversary than with our Lord Jesus Christ! (Indeed, if our Lord were to appear in the deep South, doubtless He would be branded a "nigger lover", despite the fact that He died for negroes as well as for other humans!). Furthermore, they are cowardly, in that they hide behind masks when going about their nefarious activities. To their credit, however, they are anti-communist and oppose the pernicious teaching of evolution.

The answer to the KKK is not to call them names, but to answer their arguments and try to show them where they are mistaken. — Richard D. Corrance, 710 Cormorant Street.

Smelled cheesy

Norman Gidney's April 3 opinion column lambasting me was so full of holes it even smelled cheesy. He omitted to mention that my salary from the Capital Region District is not the "maximum of $7,240" he cited but only $3,620. He forgot to mention that every last dollar of it is taxed. He forgot to mention that when Saanich council salaries were re-organized I declined to take the full increase last year and voluntarily reduced my pay by $800. He omitted mentioning that for the same reason I voted against the full increase in CRD scales this year.

But the omission that was the unkindest cut of all was failing to mention the reason, in both cases, which was the whole point of the comments I made to which he took personal umbrage. And that reason was that we need guidelines on local government officials' pay scales from the provincial level so that the subjective problems — for the politicians as well as reporters — of setting civic salaries are eliminated.

I sympathize with poor Norman's implied complaint that he is paid almost as paltry a salary as he believes only politicians deserve. I'm not opposed to him being paid more than CRD directors. Doubtless good journalists are more important to society.

The only trouble I had with his column was a nagging recollection of one of the important quotes in the Davey Royal Commission on Media a few years back. Something about the real danger of abusing the power of the press is found not in what is actually printed, but rather in what is omitted. — Ald. John Mika, 1560 Mileva Lane.

Protect animals

Re: tests of polar bears with oil and similar experiments with animals:

The animals have served us through the ages and are still serving us in many, many ways. We therefore have obligations towards them and should certainly not misuse our power by submitting them to painful tests in order to prove our point. There must be better ways to benefit from, and protect our environment in this day and age of new inventions and accumulated knowledge.

If a person, or persons, for some reason lack understanding and compassion, then they simply should not be in a position to do so, to prevent cruelty as well as seek and provide better alternatives in co-operating with the environment, particularly where living and thus feeling creatures are concerned. — Ida G. Weisse, 666 Wagar Avenue.

Fire nonsense

Alderman Colin Blair of Esquimalt is to be congratulated for his stand against Victoria taking over fire protection in Esquimalt.

If it was a question of a Metropolitan Fire Department, one which would include Saanich, Oak Bay, Esquimalt, View Royal and Victoria, that would make sense.

To turn our facilities and men over to Victoria at a greater cost than maintaining our own department at this time of high interest rates and inflation is utter nonsense. The provincial government did not place a time limit on the splitting of our police-fire department.

Keep up the good work, Alderman Blair. Many Esquimalt taxpayers agree with your course of action in this respect. — George R. Banfield, 847 Carrie Street.

Housing priority

It is now time for our two senior levels of government to re-assess their priorities.

If I read the mood of Canadians correctly, one of the current major concerns is housing and the cost of money to obtain housing. If this be so, this matter should be near the top of any government priority list for action and funding. This is not to suggest that matters such as health, welfare, and unemployment insurance are not high priority, but where do B.C. Place, Coquihalla Highway, amateur sport and items of that nature fit into the list? Not before essential housing, I would suggest.

Monies now allocated to items of lesser priority should be re-allocated at a reasonable rate of interest (10-11 per cent) to enable Canadians, particularly the younger, to be able to purchase a home, or even more urgently, be able to keep the home purchased earlier.

If it be true that some 250,000 homeowners are now likely to lose their homes when required to refinance this year, I suggest that housing should be very near the top of any priority list.

Once inflation is checked, and the housing needs of our country are met, lower priority items could be refunded as monies become available.

One source of funds for housing could of course come from lotteries, at the expense of a number of "nice-to-have" rather than "must have" projects — but there are many others. — R. F. Choat, 2160 Ferndale Road.

Taxpayers unite

Both MPs in Ottawa and MLAs in Victoria enjoy a large chunk of their salaries tax free, whereas ordinary people, working or retired on their own modest savings, have to pay both provincial and federal income tax out of every penny they own. The tax forms sent with the return sheets is a dreadful injustice hitting far too hard people in the $8,000 to $10,000 income, especially elderly citizens who cannot take advantage of the various tax shelters allowed to other taxpayers.

Why, even the basic OAP and the Canada PP are taxable. With the cost of living that has already cut in half old people's savings many who have provided for their own retirement are hard up, unjustly, because they cannot claim rental grants and many benefits granted to those on social assistance.

Yet, people growing old are in need of some occasional household help and many cannot afford to pay the accepted rate of $5 which, for at least four hours will come up to $20, which is what they have to live on. They seldom can afford to have windows washed, dry cleaners to look after curtains and drapes, and they are not strong enough for that type of heavy work.

We heard over the media that the Leader of the Opposition and the PM want their residences redecorated at public expense. Yet they have plenty of money to take care of their needs.

It seems that MPs and MLAs receive more than $8,000 tax free. People with approximately the same income have to pay taxes, provide their own transportation and many other needs.

Senior citizen taxpayers should not be required to pay 40 per cent of taxable income, as many have paid 25 years or more. They don't want to give up their apartments. Even if they wanted to it would be extremely difficult to find cheaper living quarters. The cost of moving is astronomical.

Perhaps the only way to get somewhere would be to have all retired taxpayers join together in a common effort. — E. I. Lattes, 432-200 Dallas Road.

Poor choice

There is no way in which allowing exploitation of the Inner Harbor can be justified. The proposed site for the Trade Centre is not a wise choice. There are other purposes to which the site could be put. One might be some sort of outdoor facilities for the Symphony Orchestra and other performing groups, which would allow them to take advantage of hundreds of tourists with nothing to do on summer evenings, and to earn enough to stand on their own feet for the first time. — Ann V. Kuczerpa, 205-2100 Cadboro Bay Road.

Clark begins the long climb back

OTTAWA — When it was finally over, Joe Clark gathered his cabinet around him, tried to start the meeting, could not, broke down, and cried.

Not 36 hours earlier Pierre Elliott Trudeau, Canada's toughest politician, had celebrated the Canadian electorate's devastation of Clark's government with a glib: "Welcome to the 1980s."

The 1980s, says the current issue of Esquire magazine, mark a return to the "hard-line culture" of the early 1970s when it was a mistake to cry — in those days American society was so disgusted by Ed Muskie crying in public that it had eliminated him from presidential consideration.

Snuggled between Muskie and Clark there were a number of "soft" years when vulnerability was in vogue, but Esquire says that era has ended and we're back to looking for bangs from our politicians rather than whimpers.

Slow fall

Knowing that probably wouldn't have helped Clark on Feb. 20, that cloudy, slushy day he called his colleagues together to go over the mechanics of handing the power they had held so briefly back to the Liberals.

Indeed, nobody had been tougher than Clark during the the Conservatives' slow-motion tumble down the long steps from the tower of government to the dungeon of opposition.

On Dec. 13 his advisers had come to him and reminded him that his minority government could still avoid defeat in the House of Commons by at least temporarily switching the House away from budget debate to other legislation.

Clark not only refused to back off his tough budget (designed to force Canadians to tighten their belts in the face of an oil shortage and recession) by appeasing Social Credit members who wanted an easier deal for Quebec.

He also refused to delay a vote on the budget, arguing that the Conservatives would only look weak and vascillating in doing so.

And when the vote was lost and the campaign began, with the polls already showing the Conservatives hopelessly behind, Clark just kept getting tougher.

There would be no retreat from the budget.

And if Trudeau was undecided about whether Canada would boycott the Olympics, Clark was not. We would twist the Soviet tail even if America's other allies decided to stroke it.

If Trudeau was easing his way through the campaign, Joe Clark would show he was knit of stronger fibre.

He ran hard — four or five appearances a day, from one end of the country to the other, whimpering a bit at the end about the unfairness of it all, but never letting up in his desperate attempt to turn the electorate around.

"He must have known in his heart of hearts that it was all going to ratshit," says an aide who is both critical and respectful of Clark.

"But every time he'd reach down for more, and go back out and make a great speech, and that amazed a lot of us around him, because we were all going around looking at our shoes."

When it was all over he mustered enough last-ditch strength to concede graciously everything he had ever wanted to Trudeau, staggered back to his Ottawa office looking like somebody had exploded a bomb under him, took two hours to compose himself and went in to meet his ministers.

When he broke down there was applause.

"It was very weird and very emotional," remembers one minister. "And everyone felt like death."

After three weeks of Hawaii and Disneyland Clark is back at his desk, grinding again, still trying to turn it around.

Some say his mood is buoyant. Flora MacDonald talked to Clark at length this week and says "he's sounding terrific."

Others are not so sure, saying there is a lot of paranoia in the air and Clark is demonstrating some of the tension and uncertainty about himself and his position that he showed three years ago when he had just been elected party leader.

The tension seems natural enough — as Pierre Elliott Trudeau gets on with the business of welcoming Canadians to the 1980s, the Conservatives are getting on with the business of trying to decide whether Clark is its man for the new decade.

During the campaign it wasn't hard to find voters who said they would vote Conservative if it weren't for "The Wimp."

It will probably come as a great surprise to many of them to find out that — so far at least — Joe Clark is holding his own in an effort to stay on as leader and maybe, just maybe, survive long enough to lead it into another election.

Not that the party has by any means committed itself to giving him the same kind of second and third shots it gave Robert Stanfield.

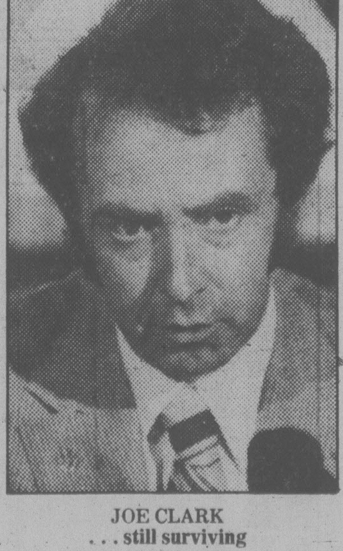
On Feb. 27, campaign chairman Paul Curley emerged from the first Conservative caucus following the election to say elected and defeated MPs were "100 per cent" behind Clark.

"Everything is sweetness and light," said former finance minister John Crombie. "We're all behind him."

What happened, in fact, was that a large number of MPs told Clark that they would support him only if he is able to turn around his negative public image within the next year or so.

Said one: "I just told him if people are still telling turkey jokes in a year and a half we'll have to look for somebody else. Nothing against him, but he's no good to us if he won't sell."

Several speakers were also critical of Clark's closest support staff, particularly Bill Neville, his chief of staff, and Senator Lowell Murray, his chief strategist.



JOE CLARK
. . . still surviving

But Clark defended them vehemently and seems determined to keep Neville at his side, despite a strong feeling within the caucus and the party that his survival chances would be heightened if he were to offer up a sacrifice to atone for mistakes past.

Whatever grumbling MPs are hearing from their constituents about Clark's leadership — and they're hearing a lot — there are several factors working in his favor.

Even his worst enemies within the party want to avoid the kind of post-Diefenbaker schism that kept the party divided for the better part of a decade prior to Clark.

And more important, there is no alternative at hand, Crosbie's folksy rhetoric was popular with the electorate but he's worn thin within the party and doesn't have the power base to make a move on Clark.

Flora Macdonald has similar problems, Sinclair Stevens has only a narrow band of supporters, and former health minister David Crombie suffered a massive heart attack prior to the election. Brian Mulroney has eliminated his short-term chances by refusing to play the game.

Michael Wilson, minister of state for international trade under Clark, performed well but is at least a few years away.

Neville contends that Clark has "in kind of a perverse way" come out of the election with a better personal standing than he had in winning.

"He's grown considerably in the job — in terms of skills and breadth and confidence there's no comparison with the Joe Clark of April, 1976 (when he won the leadership), but I don't think that growth period is anywhere near over.

"And there's no use of getting rid of anybody unless you have somebody you can replace him with — I think that's the least that can be said."

In recent weeks Clark's people have been pushing for a party convention in the fall to test his leadership, before people start coming up with alternatives.

Early or late

Party President Robert Coates has argued against the idea, on the grounds that the party should be concentrating on its performance in the House. There is the additional factor that those who would like to replace Clark would like to wait to see who will replace Trudeau.

Neville argues in favor of an early test — some think to solidify his own position.

"I don't think Joe Clark's leadership is under any serious threat, but I think it is useful for the leader to get a fresh mandate from the party in order to do some of the things that need to be done (such as bolster Clark's support within the party executive and cut off the opposition at the knees).

"I guess until he gets that mandate one can raise a question about us. If one wants to raise those kinds of questions."

Some people do. But so far, in the words of that song from the 70s, Joe Clark is "stayin' alive, stayin' alive."

Good night, sweet roll!

I had my mouth fixed for a prune Danish — nothing else would do — when a letter came asking: "How about variations on pastries? In Texas, everything is a roll."

Pastriotism is the first refuge of a newly awakened scoundrel. However, when the pastriot wakes up in a strange city and calls for his coffee regular (there's a good name for a movie star) he may find it difficult naming what he wants.

What's the difference between a Danish and a sweet roll? A doughball and a huffle-duffle? A jelly doughnut and a jelly roll, a turnover and a pocketbook, a Bismarck and a bear claw?

These and other dialectical variations were put to the man from DARE: Fredric Cassidy, editor of the Dictionary of American Regional English, the great linguistic project cooking at the University of Wisconsin. It turns out that one of DARE's national interviewing questions has been "What names are used around here for fancy rolls and pastries?"

We are not talking here about breads — hard rolls and soft rolls. Sweet (or "fancy") rolls are yeast cakes with fruits or nuts baked in, often with a sugary glop on top. Northerners call that topping "frosting"; Southerners call it "icing." (A more substantive difference is that frosting is soft and icing is hard.)

Jelly rolls are deceptive. They are not always flat cakes, smeared on top with jelly, then rolled up and sliced. In the south, the phrase is often a code word for copulation: the "Jelly Roll Blues" is a far cry from a passion for prune Danish. More often, a jelly roll is a jelly doughnut, fried dough with jelly inside, familiar on both coasts but less in the interior.

Now we're into fried cakes, the yeast-leavened, fried dough that you have during a coffee break in the north-central states. The original doughnut gained its name because the dough was shaped into a nut-like ball — later, a culinary genius conceived the toroidal shape, which enabled the cake to float in the frying fat so that it could be flipped over easily and not stay all soggy inside.

Fried bread is a bread dough fried in deep fat, and is called Baptist cake, dough ball, huffle-duffle, morning glory and spider bread.

In New York and New England, the fried word is cruller, from the Dutch "krul," or "twist" — root of "curl." Glazed doughnuts (also spelled donuts) are popular there; when the doughnut is long and straight, it takes on the name of underwear: long johns.

When uncertain about ordering a Danish or a sweet roll, ask for a bun. Hot cross buns are an Easter favorite, and "honey buns" are thicker and taller than most breakfast pastry (in Philadelphia, say "sticky buns"). Be careful about asking for a tart, as a prostitute may appear at your door: a "jam tart" was a sweet pastry in England, and the term was soon applied to a feminine sweetie.

What does the nomenclature of pastriotism teach us? First, that the diversity of our taste resists all regimentation in rolls, and second, that even when we eat the same thing, we insist on our local terminology. Homogenization is for milk, not for dialect.

Final swallow: When in Copenhagen, use the word the Danes use for Danish pastry: "Wienerbrot." That means "Viennese bread." When in Vienna, say, "Send up a prune Danish."

Fulsome Rushes In

"That was a fulsome answer," said Ronald Reagan to a questioner in Brooklyn last month; "I hope you don't think I was filibustering."

It was not his long answer, but his use of "fulsome" that was fulsome. The word is not the adjective form of "full"; it is not a synonym for "complete," though candidate Reagan's misuse of it is widespread.

"Fulsome" is related to "foul"; one meaning is "loathsome," or at least "offensive." A related meaning — and here's where the confusion starts — is "excessive." The frequently used phrase "fulsome praise" does not mean "lavish praise"; rather, it means "praise so excessive that it is obviously insincere and fawning."

The distinction is worth preserving. If you mean "lengthy," use that word; if you want to go a step farther (or further; either is correct), say "overlong"; beyond that, you can accuse a speaker of logorrhea. But if you want to say, "That turns me off because it's just too much, and I think he's laying it on that thick because he knows it isn't true" — and you want to put it all in one word — use "fulsome" to describe an introduction, or oratory, or praise, or even blame.

Sweden: Where prison is a luxury

By MICK BROWN
London Observer

Coming across the lawn, a pair of garden shears in his hand, Ronnie Petersen, an inmate at the Helsingborg prison on the west coast of Sweden, 500 miles from Stockholm, might have been thinking how a man could spend a beautiful day such as this on the other side of the high wire fence. But in a half-hour Ronnie would be walking out of the prison gates and down the road to his home for a late-afternoon game of tennis with his wife and children, before returning to be locked up for the night.

Petersen, 37, is serving an 18-month prison sentence for tax evasion. Like all prisoners in Helsingborg and most other Swedish prisons, he can regularly visit family and friends outside, telephone home, enjoy conjugal visits in the prison, and vote. In short, he can enjoy virtually all the rights and many of the pleasures of life beyond the prison fence, except perhaps the most important one — the right to come and go when he chooses.

Opened last July, Helsingborg is one of the most modern prisons in Sweden, and will be the model for the Swedish prison system over the next 15 years. Some 40 men and women are imprisoned here, most of them serving 12-month sentences for such crimes as robbery, tax evasion, or drug offences. Each prisoner has a private room with pine furniture, shower, and toilet. Numerous lounges are equipped with color television and well-stocked refrigerators. Men and women sleep in separate wings.

Over the past five years Sweden has made giant strides toward establishing the most progressive judicial and prison system in the world. The current joke among Swedes is that it is now easier to get out of prison than to get in. Courts have attempted to keep the prison population down by using imprisonment as the last resort, with the result that while the number of reported crimes has doubled in the last 10 years, the prison population has fallen slightly to a mere 3,500 inmates.

At the heart of the Swedish prison system is a deep conviction that the dignity of the prisoner is sacrosanct, and that rehabilitation can be achieved only by the prisoner maintaining free and open links with the outside world. Prisoners serving sentences of twelve months or less are sent to institutions as close to home as possible. Anyone serving a sentence of more than three months (except those regarded as dangerous criminals) has at least three days' leave each month to spend with family and friends.

Despite this, and the millions of dollars invested in vocational training and education in prisons, the recidivism rate for inmates of local institutions remains around 45 per cent, and for inmates of national institutions a disturbing 80 per cent. Such statistics have caused some Swedish administrators to question the value of a system which puts rehabilitation before punishment.

Olarne Grubb, an inmate at Skenas Prison, near the town of Norrkoping, says, "It is not prison which stops a man being a criminal." Grubb, who has spent 25 of his 47 years in prison on 15 separate convictions, describes Skenas as "a garden for children" and observes, "I preferred prison when it was tougher. Here you are half in and half out; the temptation is too great."

Skenas epitomizes the Swedish system at its most enlightened. Yet for all its freedoms and good relations between staff and inmates, Skenas is not without its probems. Officials admit that furloughs, private visiting, and the generally open nature of the place make drug smuggling almost impossible to control.

The availability of drugs in prisons, and the incidence of crimes committed by prisoners on furlough, have led the Swedish press and Parliament to demand stricter security measures. New legislation provides for stricter controls on serious offenders, reducing their contact with the outside world, tightening visiting privileges, and censoring mail. The new laws represent a shift toward more restrictive treatment of habitual criminals, but that is offset by even greater freedoms for less serious offenders.

Under Swedish law prisoners have the right to form grievance committees. The Central Organization of Prisoners (COP), which claims to represent inmates in all institutions, has petitioned for a stronger voice in prison administration and inmates' rights. The head of COP is Lars Bjorklund, who has served eight different terms in Swedish prisons and is currently serving a 2½-year sentence for fraud at Kalmar, a traditional prison 200 miles south of Stockholm.

Bjorklund, a lugubrious-looking man of 49, prematurely aged by institutional life, offers a simple explanation for his recidivism. Under a Swedish law that convicts have to repay money they have stolen, he now owes more than a million dollars in interest alone on capital he misappropriated in 1953. "What incentive is there for me to go straight?" he laments. "Maybe I function better inside than out. Sometimes I think I have found my true vocation here."

Smiles from boardroom

Toronto Star

The Bronfman family, those altruistic folks who produce the Seagram's products — not for profit, as I understand it, but merely to benefit mankind — have moved into journalism for much the same sort of reason and we, as Canadians, are darned lucky that they have.

Just as the saying has it that war is too important to be left to generals, "a concerned corporate citizen," as Charles R. Bronfman describes his company, has long felt that journalism is much too important to be left to journalists.

And, by golly, when I think about it, he's right. Hardly any journalists sit on boards of directors, drive around in limousines, inherit billion-dollar business empires, or own baseball teams, as Bronfman does, so we can hardly appreciate his concerns or have his perceptive vision of Canada.

Nearly all the journalists I know are dull-witted types who think of Canada as a place to live in, to work in, to raise a family in; a place where we can try to find a little security and pleasure and keep a step ahead of the bailiff. We have an awfully narrow horizon.

Bronfman knows that these pursuits are inconsequential and pedestrian. Unlike us, he is able to appreciate this country as an immense factory designed to produce the good things in life, such as acres of black ink on the balance sheet, and to realize that the people who live in it should be honored to consider themselves as resources, every bit as valuable as the oil and the aluminum and the hydro-electric power and the iron ore in the ground.

Journalists too often can't see the forest for the environment that is destroyed when it is cut down. So Seagram's hired a fleet of writers to give us the lowdown from the 54th floor, to let us in on the real truth, to furnish us with the Bronfman Version.

My copy, entitled The Canadian Journey, came absolutely free inside the March 24 Maclean's, which cost $1. It is the corporate equivalent of the Playboy centre-fold. I felt when I read it that I should be in my bedroom with the door locked, because it gave me a look at things that set my heart to hammering and my palms to sweating.

The first question the Bronfman Version raises is, "Why are so many Canadians so unhappy about their country?"

The second question is, "Why all this sourness and discontent?" — they are the words of Simon Reisman, who was once the federal deputy finance minister — "Why all the screaming and hollering . . .?"

The answers to the questions are so simple, so obvious, that you'll kick yourself when Charles R. Bronfman tells you.

First, Canadians are so unhappy because they haven't put on a happy face. Simple? What did I tell you?

Let a smile unlock the logjam of Confederation.

The second question is basically rhetorical. What we have to understand is not that we have problems, what we have to understand is that we just complain too much. If everybody would stop complaining everything would be a whole heck of a lot better.

BRONFMAN . . . it's simple

How is a man like Bronfman supposed to concentrate on getting the most out of the market economy with this constant din of complaint going on around him?

Specifically, he says, "Toronto and southern Ontario should cheer up," because we simply don't know how well off we are. How well off are we? you ask. Real well off, says Bronfman, and if you can't believe him, who can you believe? His assurance cheered me up in a flash.

At a single swoop he untangles the ages-old conflict between Quebec and the rest of Canada in a stunningly direct fashion: If they'll stop complaining in French and we stop complaining in English, then everybody will be equal.

Do you remember the time a few years back when Pierre Trudeau, the well-known prime minister, conquered inflation? He did it by standing right up there and saying, "We have conquered inflation." Sure enough, he had, simply by saying it, and there hasn't been a trace of inflation in the country since.

The corporate mind understands this approach. The Bronfman Version says all we have to do is recognize that the language split and the regional disparities and the cultural obstacles "which we so often insist are problems that cripple us are in fact opportunities that can enrich and free us."

In other words, problems can be solved simply by calling them opportunities. "Losing your house because you can't meet the mortgage? What a wonderful opportunity for you! Hungry? How lucky you are!" Problem is Opportunity. War is Peace. Freedom is Slavery. Ignorance is Strength. Journalism as we know it is obsolete. Big Bronfman is writing for you.

As for me, I'm opening a distillery.

LE MONDE, Paris

Christianity is progressing by leaps and bounds at Khao Dang, one of Thailand's biggest refugee camps. Hundreds, thousands of refugees have already abandoned Buddhism and embraced Christianity in the expectation that this gesture will improve their chances of emigrating to the West. The missionaries present in the camp are distributing bibles and brochures, and they have already organised a dozen bible study groups.

A refugee from Phnom Penh said "Some of them say that by becoming Christian you can be sent to the United States. As far as I am concerned, I've become Christian because they gave me a tee-shirt marked with a cross and bearing the phrase: "I love you Jesus!"

Catholic aid services say they are devoting themselves solely to helping the refugees. "We think it's better to establish ties of friendship and understanding," said one missionary. "That's why every conversion to Christianity is sincere."

According to one refugee aid official, the conversion phenomenon sprang up after President Carter's wife Rosalynn visited Sakeo camp last autumn.

Another missionary explained that this rush of conversions resulted from a real spiritual need felt by the Cambodians "who come from an idolatrous country." He said there were between 10,000 and 20,000 converts in this camp of 110,000 refugees.

This is an extraordinarily high proportion considering that, in the past, missionaries in Cambodia, Thailand and Laos encountered practically nothing but setbacks.

Can anyone tell Mr. Harvey when his golden age is supposed to begin?

He had it all figured out, how he would make the most of his retirement years.

Finally there would be time to travel, to take up a hobby, to see more of his grandchildren. Even to sleep late.

It wasn't enough.

Two years later, Mr. Harvey still misses the routine of his working days: especially the company of his buddies at the plant.

The thought of old age hounds him. And then there's inflation.

Mr. Harvey doesn't need another worry, but he soon may have one. Quite simply, he's gone from moderate to heavy drinking. Not only when he gets together with his friends, but during ordinary evenings, when he and his wife are just relaxing at home.

Moderation is for young people, Mr. Harvey will tell you.

True enough. But now that Mr. Harvey is past his physical prime and facing new situations that need stamina and clear thinking, it's just as important for him.

Moderation belongs to every age. It's one idea that should never be retired.

Hearings set on radio-tel rates

Public hearings will be held in May on rate increases proposed by the B.C. Telephone Co. for marine radio-telephone users.

The Canadian Radio-Television Telecommunications Commission says the hearings will be held because of the reaction since the company announced its plans.

Hearings will take place May 26 at Williams Lake, May 27 at Campbell River and May 28-29 in Vancouver.

The commission has received submissions on the rate proposals from 240 sources.

Early in November, B.C. Tel proposed monthly increases on radio-telephone amounting to about 117 per cent. Those using the service for only four months a year would have faced a 193 per cent hike.

George Hewison, secretary-treasurer of the 7,500-member United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, claimed the company has a monopoly and was holding fishermen, who depend on radio-telephones for safety and other reasons, to ransom.

The company had expected the rates to go into effect Dec. 1. Had they done so, the $6.90 monthly charge would have risen to $15, meaning the year-round user would pay $180 instead of $82.80. For the four-month user the cost would have soared from $27.60 to $81.

The CRTC gave B.C. Tel until Feb. 1 to supply additional information and a further two-week extension.

The company has suggested a possible alternative rate structure of $10 instead of $15 a month but $1.40 per minute instead of the proposed 80 cents.

The CRTC also noted the provincial ministry of universities, science and communications has requested a copy of B.C. Tel's economic situation and that the company had asked the commission to have this document given confidential treatment. Eventually the ministry received an abridged version of the evaluation.

September start set for recycled garbage

An experimental nine-month garbage recycling project will start in September, Saanich council decided Monday.

A small section of the municipality will be selected for the experiment by the citizen's task force on recycling.

Saanich will apply for provincial government grants to offset expenses, estimated by staff at $20,000 for the three months the project will be in effect this year.

The object is to determine how much a full-scale, year-round recycling operation would cost municipal taxpayers.

Saanich engineering and planning departments have approved the idea.

However, task force chairman Ald. Howard Sturrock doesn't agree with municipal cost estimates.

The task force estimated the 1980 portion of the pilot project to collect papers and cans on a volunteer basis should cost not more than $5,000.

In a recent report it says a year-round paper and can recycling service would cost approximately $80,000, offset by roughly $58,000 in projected revenues.

The task force believes the municipality can sell papers and cans to buyers in Victoria, Vancouver and Seattle.

Municipal engineering department puts the cost at $272,000, including a full-time co-ordinator and depot, with $47,000 in revenues.

Extensive fire damage at vacant 2-storey home

An early morning fire caused extensive damage to the top floor of a vacant two-storey house at 4021 Blenkinsop.

The fire was spotted at 5 a.m. by a Victoria City police officer en route to work.

When Saanich firemen arrived the upstairs was engulfed in fire and flames were breaking through the roof.

Firemen had the fire under control within minutes and extinguished within an hour.

Saanich police said tenants had moved out on Monday and the house was vacant at the time.

An investigation was under way to determine the cause of the fire which appeared to have started in a bedroom.

No damage figure was available.

Wash. ferry talks break off

SEATTLE (AP) — Round-the-clock contract talks between striking ferry workers and the Washington state ferry system broke off early today, precipitating more court action and threats of a sympathy strike.

The state planned to return to court to ask why the striking Inlandboatmen's Union should not be held in contempt for ignoring a back-to-work order issued when the strike began, April 5.

The threat of a sympathy strike by the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union resurfaced as union president Jim Herman said dockworkers might walk off their jobs.

No new talks were scheduled, although both sides said they were willing to resume negotiations. Bargaining broke down after a 36-hour marathon session, possibly over amnesty from court-imposed fines against the 800-member Inlandboatmen's Union.

Shouts about fines were heard coming from the bargaining room shortly before talks collapsed but Alice Collingwood, ferry system spokesman, refused to identify the problem.

Fire chief tries prod

Local fire departments are urging their municipal councils to investigate a common communications system for the seven separate fire departments in the capital region.

Victoria fire chief Eric Simmons said in a letter to the city that the Greater Victoria Fire Chiefs Association last month endorsed a resolution asking each chief to prod his local council on the matter.

Expanded studies offered

An expanded integrated studies program will be offered at Cedar Hill Junior Secondary School to Grade 8 students for the first time this September.

The program previously available only to Grade 9 and 10 students, allows talented students to integrate courses in English, French, social studies, maths and science and to take enriched material.

Students work in a structured environment but are able to set their own pace and try innovative methods of problem-solving.

There is emphasis on group work, community and world studies and an opportunity for students to plan his future by becoming aware of his involvement, interests and abilities.

Up to 25 students will be admitted to each of five core classes and each applicant is urged to take at least three of the enriched courses.

Admission will be based on recommendation of elementary teachers and past performance.

Money Talk
A series in which Montreal Trust answers your questions.
"How much mortgage debt can I carry?"
"How can I go about determining the amount of mortgage debt I can reasonably afford to carry?"
There are two commonly used ways of determining how much of a mortgage you can afford. At Montreal Trust, we call these the Gross Debt Ratio and the Total Debt Ratio.
Gross Debt: Here, the monthly or annual principal, interest and taxes should not exceed 30% of your gross income.* For example: someone with a gross income of $20,000 can generally afford to carry a loan where the principal interest and realty taxes are $500 per month. *Where family income is being considered, this ratio is reduced.
Total Debt: This includes your Gross Debt plus any other installment debts you may have. It should not exceed 35% of your gross income.* For example: with a gross income of $20,000 you could generally afford to carry a total loan, including the installment debt, of approximately $583 a month. *Where family income is being considered, this ratio is reduced.
How fast for a mortgage.
"We've been looking for a house this spring and have finally found one we both love. Now the owner is insisting we complete the deal as quickly as possible. How soon can we have an answer on our mortgage application?"
It's always difficult choosing a new home, so when you find one that you really like, it's essential to move fast to secure it.
How soon your mortgage application can be processed depends on several factors; but if your application is fairly straightforward, we can normally give you an answer within 48 hours, and on occasions, even faster.

Ruth and Floyd Brooks will represent Canadian liberators

Guests of honor

A Dutch treat for city couple from grateful Holland town

CANADA PRIZE
WINSCHOTEN

By PAT DUFOUR

The Dutch town of Winschoten on May 5 will celebrate the Second World War ceasefire and a Victoria couple, Floyd and Ruth Brooks of 647 Michigan, will be the guests of honor.

Brooks, a major heading the 76th Battery of the 17th Field Regiment, Royal Canadian Artillery, helped the town get back on its feet after the war ended. His name is still a family word in the Dutch community.

The Major Brooks Fund, established late in 1945 in his honor, is still in existence as is the special medal which was struck, centred with a maple leaf, bearing his name and the RCA motto Quo Fass et Gloria Ducunt (Where Duty and Glory Lead).

Brooks makes it clear he will be representing all Canadians who helped liberate Holland. This is also stressed in a letter to Mr. and Mrs. Brooks from the burgomaster and aldermen of Winschoten. The letter begins:

"We consider it an honor to invite both of you to come to our town for a week as special guests to add extra lustre to the celebration of the liberation at the fifth of May, 1980. In your person, Mr. Brooks, we would like to thank all our liberators of 35 years ago . . ."

Brooks and his men had spent 18 months in Italy before they began working their way up through France and Holland. He still remembers the gracious hospitality they received en route from the burgomaster of Barneveld and his wife.

"They were so gracious and almost emaciated. They had been eating bulbs all winter. Yet, they served us tea and black bread and asked if we would like to use the (underground) phone to call London or New York."

When the ceasefire came on May 5 Brooks and his men were in the port of Delfzil, having made a Canadian tank assault possible by setting up a smoke screen so that the tanks could get through.

When the war ended, Brooks recalls, "We were lost sheep. We didn't have a job."

That changed when they made their way back to Winschoten:

"There we found people with no transportation. We had to help somehow. The townspeople were not capable of doing much," he recalls.

Brooks was asked to set up a co-ordinating group with doctors and other civilian professionals and tradespeople paired off with their Canadian counterparts.

"We had plenty of trucks, medical supplies and lots of food," Brooks says. Soon he had army trucks converted for use as buses and the Germans, now returning to their homeland, also proved a valuable resource. We found a lot of useful tools from the Germans."

The Canadian soldiers were to remain in Winschoten for six months. To keep them from being bored Brooks set up a training schedule. Each morning the men would have a compulsory one-hour study in political science and related subjects. In the afternoon there were 15 courses offered, ranging from welding to typing.

Brooks was presented with the first medal struck in memory of him and his men. Since the war the medals have been used as awards at performance nights, where the townsfolk compete in English and French in memory of their Canadian liberators.

Brooks shrugs off his achievements.

"It wasn't that much. It ran itself."

But nobody believes that in Winschoten.

Police mediation fails

By MIKE HUGHES

Mediation efforts to reach a contract settlement for 300 Greater Victoria policemen ground to a halt Monday and a strike vote looms as the next step.

Union spokesman Bryan Bailey said today police negotiators have cancelled further meetings because of dissatisfaction with the response from the Greater Victoria Labor Relations Board on the issue of standardization of contracts.

The move followed a three-hour meeting Monday, the first involving both sides and mediator Bob Almgren.

This is the first year police in Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt have bargained jointly with the GVLRA and Bailey said the policemen's first concern is how each force will be affected by a proposed standard contract.

At Monday's meeting GVLRA manager Carl Anshelm refused to discuss the policemen's proposals for standardizing cost items in the four contracts, Bailey said.

He said there is a significant difference in some cost items in the contracts and the policemen want at least some indication what kind of trade-offs the GVLRA has in mind in dealing with the agreements.

Bailey said the policemen have indicated that they are not interested in binding arbitration or any kind of work to rule.

"All they want is a strike vote."

Anshelm said today there have been no real negotiations to date because of the policemen's position that the standardization issue has to be resolved first.

"They want a prior committment on some very expensive concessions before there are any negotiations," Anshelm said.

He said the GVLRA provided the policemen with seven pages of proposals for a standard contract but they were dealing with non-cost items.

Another issue in dispute is the GVLRA's position that it will bargain only within the framework of a total cost package which is 95 per cent of what Vancouver policemen get.

The Greater Victoria policemen want parity with Vancouver.

Bailey said there appeared to be some softening of GVLRA's position in this area Monday but the standardization issue remained.

The policemen's contracts expired Dec. 31, 1979.

TOWN TALK

While most of us have to settle for prints of paintings by the likes of Cornelius Krieghoff, there's someone in town who is the proud possessor of the real thing.

You can take solace in one thing though. It cost the unidentified collector $53,000.

The painting, Water Scene near St. Cesaire, was put on the block at Lund's Auctioneers Monday night with the bidding starting at $20,000.

A spokesman for the firm said today it was the highest price ever paid on the west coast for one of the famed 19th Century Canadian artist's works.

The price wasn't a record, however. A Krieghoff painting fetched $62,000 recently in eastern Canada.

The painting was part of a collection of antiques and art objects sold by auction. Total sales exceeded $200,000, making it one of the richest auctions in Victoria in many months.

He missed the deadline for the Times bridge-tunnel survey but R.D. Anderson's contribution to the debate is an interesting footnote to the controversy.

He gives qualified approval to a fixed link, but it's the technology he describes which is the real eye-grabber. It could be described in short: "Grow your own tunnel."

Anderson sent Town Talk an article from a recent edition of Mother Earth News, telling of a process first observed by researchers at the University of Texas.

Wire mesh in the shape of the desired structure was immersed in the sea and a weak electric current run through it. In a short time, minerals in the water begin to precipitate and attach to the wire mesh.

In a few months, the holes in the mesh filled up with a limestone-like substance. Prof. Wolf Hilbertz found the material able to stand pressures up to 4,000 pounds per square inch, structurally stronger than some forms of concrete.

Who needs the $2 billion technology of honeycombed concrete pontoons anchored by titanium cables to the sea bed?

Big Al Passarell (NDP—Atlin) is making a name for himself as one of the more colorful members of the legislature. Sometimes, however, he lets the color overshadow the facts.

Passarell asked in the legislature Monday about a highways superintendent in his riding who prefers to fly rather than drive and who charters the plane from his own wife.

Outside the house he named the man and accused him of abusing his position but a quick check with the far north shows Passarell was flying too high on that one.

The man in question acquired a plane a few days ago and flies it only for pleasure, his wife does not fly or own a plane and the superintendent has chartered commercial planes for his twice-yearly flying tour of all highway camps in the area — a normal procedure.

Next time zoom down for a closer look, Al.

Academy Award winner Sally Field is a delightful person but she sometimes gets annoyed about being in the spotlight.

Local amateur photographer Ruth Milikin snapped a picture of the rather harried actress in an outdoor bar while on holiday in Cannes, France.

"She had just told somebody, I think it was a reporter: 'Why don't you people leave me alone?

"Then she saw me taking the picture and was obviously annoyed. She tried to hide her head. She was lovely and petite and charming but very tired. I think she'd just about had it."

Milikin, a Victoria probation officer, has a natural interest in movie stars. Her brother, who lives in California, is a lawyer for Marlon Brando.

It was Bill Bennett's 48th birthday Monday and he got a round of desk-thumping applause from both sides of the house. He also got a little dig from NDP leader Dave Barrett who asked whether the premier intended to answer some birthday questions.

Debate on the premier's estimates is in its fourth week and the opposition continues to taunt Bennett for failing to answer questions.

Outside the house Bennett told reporters he had to get a fire permit for the candles on his cake. He also said his birthday isn't nearly as important as another celebration this week:

"On Wednesday Audrey and I have our 25th wedding anniversary. That is incredible. Very few people thought she could put up with me for 24 years."

The premier paused, smiled and added, "She was among them."

Not to be outdone in post-secondary institution recruiting wars now being waged across Canada, University of Victoria has launched its own advertising campaign.

This year, for the first time, posters extolling UVic's virtues have been sent to 2,000 high schools across the country.

"Canada's west coast offers rugged coastlines, magnificent scenery, year-round recreational activities and the University of Victoria," the poster proclaims.

But the new approach to attracting students isn't nearly as flashy as the recruiting campaigns of some eastern universities, explains UVic director of admission services David Glen.

The University of Guelph, for instance, spent a reported $200,000 producing a glib pop tune that was played 10 times a day on stations across Ontario.

Trade centre foes to race the clock

Citizens protesting the waterfront trade and conference centre will have to take their chances on being allowed to speak at tonight's public meeting of the Advisory Planning Commission.

Depending on the clock, they may or may not have an opportunity to talk.

APC chairman Jim Cosh said the city's request for a report on a zoning change to allow the centre to go ahead presents the appointed commission with a new situation.

. . . neighbors first

"We haven't come up against this kind of rezoning before. I haven't thought it through yet," he said when asked if the people who have been agitating against a trade centre on the harbor — including Ald. Robin Blencoe, former mayor Peter Pollen and petition organizer Marjorie Pettigrew — would be allowed to speak.

The APC meets at 7:30 p.m. in city hall.

Technically, there is no proposal for a trade centre before the APC, only a request from the city council to look at the effects of changing the harbor commercial zoning which covers the waterfront from the Johnson Street bridge around to Laurel Point to allow public buildings.

Under APC rules anyone who lives or owns property within a block of the area affected by zoning changes may offer his opinions at the monthly public sessions of the commission.

Cosh said he would first like to get the opinions of the neighbors of the area affected by the zoning amendment, then if there is time others may speak to the issue.

The APC has other presentations on its agenda tonight.

—Owners of the Royal Olympic hotel in the 600-block Johnson want their property rezoned to allow expansion on the adjoining parking lot.

—Two-time loser Danclair Developments Ltd. has come back with a third proposal to develop their property at Hillside and Scott opposite Hillside shopping centre as a one-storey shopping and office complex.

—Owners of the controversial Boyd-Luxton property in James Bay are also applying for rezoning from single-family dwelling to R-J, attached townhouses.

Trade centre opponents have another chance to voice their opinions next month when city council holds a public hearing May 8 or 22 on the proposal to amend the zoning bylaw, after it gets a recommendation back from the APC.

Elderly have nowhere to go after surgery

A claim by Victoria NDP MLA Gordon Hanson that elderly citizens are putting off needed surgery because they have nowhere to recuperate was substantiated today by a Glenshiel Hotel spokesman.

Hanson blasted the government Monday for keeping 25 rooms in the provincially-owned Douglas Street hotel closed at a time when rental accommodation in the city is virtually nonexistent.

Hanson said 45 people have their names on a Glenshiel waiting list, hoping to have a place to recuperate after medical operations.

Mrs. Joan Hand confirmed Hanson's claim today.

"A woman called just yesterday and she was crying — actually crying — because she needs an operation and she has nowhere to go after."

The woman, who said she has her own apartment but felt she couldn't handle it immediately after an operation, told Hand she had checked homes in Oak Bay and James Bay and had been told she would not be taken in.

The government originally announced it would close the Glenshiel within two years but a public protest forced Transportation and Highways Minister Alex Fraser, whose ministry handles the hotel, to permit present residents to stay.

Hanson wrote his third letter to Fraser on the issue, saying that of the 45 people on the Glenshiel waiting list, 14 need permanent accomodation while the balance need a room for anywhere from three days to a month.

Highlands booklet 'blatant bias'

A glossy pamphlet describing the 15,000-acre Highlands as a recreation paradise is a blatant attempt to prejudice public opinion against some property owners, the president of the East Highland Community Association said Monday.

Christina Rainey said the Highlands Greenbelt Committee unfairly published the brochure before the secondary plan for the area could be completed by the Capital Region District.

Rainey, a member of the Highlands steering committee involved in the planning, said she wasn't aware of the existence of the greenbelt committee until a Times article Saturday.

The article said the committee's goal is to preserve a large part of the Highlands for recreational use. The booklet is intended to arouse public interest in the area's future.

Rainey said her group believes it should have the chance to tell the public its side of the story.

East Highlands is a small community on the Saanich border between Thetis Lake and Durrance Lake parks.

About 2,000 acres of East Highlands property was put into a land freeze in 1974 along with the rest of the Highlands.

Instead of eliminating speculation the freeze drove up land prices, Rainey claimed.

And it caused hardship to property owners who couldn't sell their land.

Contrary to popular opinion, the East Highlands group is not in favor of freeing the land for indiscriminate development of highrises and condominiums.

Rainey personally favors an average five-acre lot size with a two-acre lot minimum.

The minimum lot size is now 10 acres, down from a 45-acre minimum imposed when the freeze took effect but reduced after land owners protested.

The CRD plan is likely to recommend a new minimum lot size of 30 acres, Rainey said.

Abitibi not expected to fare as well in '80

TORONTO (CP) — Abitibi-Price Inc. of Toronto will not be able to match last year's earnings despite higher first-quarter results, R. C. Gimlin, president and chief executive officer, told the annual meeting today.

Gimlin said consumption of paper products, particularly newsprint, is declining and record high interest rates are adversely affecting sales of lumber and building materials.

For the first quarter, Abitibi-Price reported net income of $34.6 million or $1.59 a share, compared with $22.5 million or $1.09 a share in the first three months of 1979. Net sales rose to $386.7 million from $354 million.

Gimlin said the level of earnings in the first quarter will not continue through the balance of the year.

"Our current best estimate is that earnings for the balance of the year will reflect the deteriorating economic environment in which we operate, especially that of the U.S."

Net income for all of 1979 was $114.1 million or $5.62 a share.

Gimlin said the company has a $1-billion program for capital improvements and 70 per cent of expenditures over the next five years will be made on newsprint mills.

He said newsprint capacity will be increased by 15 per cent to $2.25 million tons annually by 1985, largely as a result of improvements in mills at Iroquois Falls., Grand Falls, Nfld., and Alma, Que.

Kaiser earnings jump

VANCOUVER (CP) — Kaiser Resources Ltd. reported Monday net earnings of $235,400,000 or $9.42 a share for the first quarter of 1980 compared with $14,053,000 or 52 cents a share for the same period in 1979.

The company said in a news release that the large increase in net earnings is due to a gain of $232,384,000 or $9.54 a share from the recent sale of the company's domestic mainland oil and gas business.

Edgar F. Kaiser, Jr., chairman and chief executive officer, said the sale enabled the company to substantially eliminate long-term debt during a period of high and rising interest rates. He said the sale also enabled the company to repurchase nine million of its shares at a price of $44 a share.

PROSPECTUS

Don Getty flies Air Canada to the U.S.A.

BECAUSE HE GETS TREATED LIKE ROYALTIES.

Keeping the cogs of a business empire oiled takes Don Getty frequently to many American cities. And, more often than not, he flies Air Canada.

Partly because Air Canada offers him the best choice of daily flights. Partly because of our track record. Air Canada's on-time performance — the vital function of departing and arriving on time — consistently surpasses most major airlines in North America. But it's mainly because of our friendly, in-flight service, which earned top marks among 14 international airlines from one of the world's most respected critics. Plus, we have convenient curbside check-in, and new customs pre-clearance on morning flights to Chicago and New York* at Vancouver airport. Don Getty concurs that Air Canada gives him food, service and comfort fit for an oil baron. Perfection may well be impossible in this world, but Air Canada is striving to meet the special needs of businessmen. Don Getty appreciates that. Efficient service and consistent, punctual performance make Air Canada Don Getty's first choice for business trips to the U.S.A., even when making connections to points beyond.

Ask your travel agent or Air Canada to give you the Executive Choice. No other airline has it.

As Don Getty says: "Air Canada has been treating me right for many years…just like royalty."

Volcano given new tilt test

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Geologists are setting out two new tilt meters on Mount St. Helens to monitor a swelling and shrinking observed in the volcano in the last three days, a U.S. Geological Survey spokesman said Monday.

In addition to its new ground tilt, the mountain kept up a steady stream of steam and ash eruptions coupled with large earthquakes.

Meanwhile, U.S. Forest Service officials here emitted a little steam of their own. Perturbed by climbers ascending the mountain illegally, they muttered darkly of possible fines and jail terms.

"Small but consistent changes in ground tilt have been recorded during the past 72 hours," survey spokesman Don Finley said Monday.

Both swelling and shrinking were recorded on a tilt meter located in a timberline parking lot, with "the overall change being a slight subsidence (shrinking) of the central part of the volcano.

"The geologists are offering no interpretation of what it might mean," Finley said.

Earlier, scientists said tilting is one indication of the likelihood of a lava eruption. It is caused when the mountain swells under the pressure of magma, or molten rock, moving toward the surface.

The volcano sent up frequent, though intermittent steam and ash plumes in the 24-hour period ending Monday morning, Finley said, with the eruptions lasting from a few minutes to 45 minutes.

A lake measuring 45 to 60 metres long and 12 metres across has formed in the crater, said Dan Miller, another survey spokesman, "but we aren't placing any significance on it; it's just a melting pond."

"There also has been a slight increase in earthquakes larger than 4.0 on the Richter scale," Finley said. The largest such quake recorded in the 24 hours ending Monday morning was a 4.7 at 5:49 a.m.

Meanwhile, two climbers who apparently slipped by roadblocks were spotted Sunday on the mountain by a U.S. Forest Service plane.

Jim Unterwegner, a forest service spokesman, said Monday the climbers had not been identified, but he noted people caught above the treeline are subject to six months in jail and a $500 fine.

"That mountain is still dangerous, whether they think so or not," he said.

Goodwill's Gray dies at 75

George A. Gray, for 23 years president and treasurer of the society that operates Goodwill Enterprises for the Handicapped, died early today.

Gray, 75, became deeply interested in Goodwill Enterprises when the Victoria Rotary club took it over in 1957.

"His life, since then, has been very much dedicated to helping handicapped persons, he will be missed a great deal," said Goodwill general manager Ian Bremner.

Bremner said Gray was a prime force behind the organization as it exists today.

Until 1965, Gray also held a volunteer position as general manger of Goodwill .

He was project manager for the new George Pearkes Clinic, and active in the Boys' Club and the Bishop Cridge Centre for the Family.

He was a parishioner of Christ Church Cathedral and a member of the Union Club.

Gray retired to Victoria in 1955 from his building supply business in Honolulu.

He was born April 30, 1904 in Caven, Ireland, and is survived by four children.

LOSE 5-14 LBS. IN NEXT TWO WEEKS WITH THE HELP OF THE no nonsense DIET

In May of 1979 Natures own no nonsense diet was introduced to British Columbians and Albertans through the Prince Health Food chain. Within weeks they were sold out and by the end of July thousands of people had lost weight the no nonsense way.

Unlike most diets to have come along this one is not dying out, but gaining greater momentum all the time. The reason for this phenomenal growth lies inthe fact that those people who have tried the diet have gotten positive results. For example I know of one particular young lady who has been overweight nearly all of her life. She wanted desperately to lose 25 lbs., and tried every possible means over the last two years. She exercised, joined clubs and went to monthly meetings. All to no avail. After reading about the no nonsense diet, she decided to give it a try before throwing in the towel. It worked. Within a month she lost 23 lbs., within two more weeks she lost another 10 lbs. She is so ecstatic about this diet that she preaches it to anyone who will listen and has most of her friends on it.

The product is a dieter's dream; two tablespoons in a glass of partially skimmed milk is equal in nutrition to a complete meal. But without all those nasty little calories. It has all the essential amino acids, and Vitamins and Minerals in a delicious powder base. The no nonsense formula comes in two flavours, luscious chocolate and tasty vanilla.

Here is a list of the Vitamins and Minerals it contains:

Vitamin A
Thiamin
Choline
Iodine
Potassium
Vitamin E
Riboflavin
Calcium Magnesium
Manganese
Vitamin C
Niacin B6, B12
Phosphorous
Copper
Sodium
Vitamin D
Folid Acid Biotin
Iron
Zinc
d-Panothenic Acid

This is a wonderful diet because you are dealing with natural foods and not drugs, consequently it is safe and very healthy. A lot of people after going on this diet, have noticed remarkable improvement in their hair, skin and nails.

The no nonsense diet is available at these and other leading Retailers:

COLWOOD UNITED PHARMACY ● HILLSIDE NATURAL FOODS ● JUBILEE PHARMACY ● McCALL-DAVEY DRUGS ● PEOPLE'S DRUG MART, GOLDSTREAM ● ROYAL OAK PHARMACY SHOPPERS DRUG MART, DOUGLAS ST. ● WENDY'S JUNGLE JUICE, THE SPA WESTERN DRUGS, ESQUIMALT ● WESTERN DRUGS, COLWOOD

Youth kept playing despite 'fatal' injury

OTTAWA (CP) — The recovery of a 16-year-old area youth who continued playing hockey after suffering a ruptured aorta is being described by doctors as miraculous and a precedent in Canadian medical history.

Doctors believe Robert Brazeau of nearby Notre Dame des Champs, Ont., ruptured the main artery in his abdomen while playing in a midget hockey tournament April 3.

Brazeau entered hospital the next morning but the injury was not diagnosed until two days later when the rupture exploded.

Ninety-five per cent of all ruptured aortas are fatal within minutes. Victims usually bleed to death if they do not receive immediate medical attention, doctors said.

Survival without immediate care in such an accident is unprecedented in Canada, said Dr. Keith Scobie, a vascular surgeon at Civic Hospital here.

"He's very lucky to be alive," agreed Dr. Thomas Dufour, the surgeon who was first called in to treat Brazeau.

"The whole case is amazing and the boy's recovery is miraculous."

Brazeau was admitted to hospital at 3 a.m. on April 4, complaining of severe abdominal pain.

Although x-rays and exploratory surgery initially showed nothing unusual, the rupture exploded two days later and surgeons worked for hours to save the youth's life, pumping 24 pints of blood into his body.

"The damage had been contained for those two days but once it was out, it was a life-and-death situation," said Dufour.

The doctor said the only explanation for the rupture was a severe blow Brazeau received during the hockey match April 3.

The youth's coach said he saw Brazeau's chest smash against the boards after a check. He completed the game after the incident.

"He's alert and he's in a regular ward," Dufour said of Brazeau's present condition.

"He's going to be just fine soon."

High rates will stay: expert

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadians are unrealistic to expect that today's high interest rates will decline to the levels of a few years ago, says Douglas Peters, chief economist of the Toronto Dominion Bank.

He said in an interview Monday that interest rates probably have not reached their cyclical peak, but the topping out is close.

"There will be a moderate decline in rates then, but we are likely to see three months or so of relatively high rates before there is a major downward move," Peters said.

But it is unrealistic to expect that interest rates will decline to six or seven per cent because of the prevailing high rate of inflation.

"High interest rates do add to inflation pressures, but they are more a result of inflation than a cause of it," he said.

Peters, in Vancouver to speak at a seminar on corporate banking, said the high cost of money probably will cut into this year's capital spending plans by the private sector, but he is more concerned about the impact on capital investment in 1981.

"It is difficult to turn the tap off on big projects once they are started, so corporations have to go ahead despite high money costs," he said. "Next year, however, you will see corporations facing a leveling off in profits and if interest rates are still high, capital spending will suffer."

Peters said the United States now is in a recession, brought on by the Carter administration's credit curbs and other measures which may have been too little and too late.

In Canada, where the personal savings rate still is relatively high — 10 per cent of disposable income — credit controls would not make sense, he said.

Alberta mounties organize collective bargaining group

EDMONTON (CP) — About 100 RCMP members have formed a chapter of an association attempting to establish collective bargaining in the force, according to one organizer.

Const. Dan Kelly, co-chairman of the three-week-old founding committee, said the existing system of representation to management is not adequate.

Salaries are not negotiated and many policemen do not carry through legitimate grievances because of lack of faith in the existing grievance structure, said Kelly, an officer with the Wetaskiwin, Alta., detachement.

The situation has lowered morale, he said, and Alberta members are quitting at an above-average rate. He said provincial support is growing for the national-wide Association of 17 Divisions.

"We want some say in pay," said Kelly. "Presently if the treasury board says that's it, then we walk out with our tail between our legs."

Nurses vote strike

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP) — Alberta nurses have voted overwhelmingly to strike for higher wages, Anne Atwood, Lethbridge district representative for the United Nurses Association, said Monday.

Ms. Atwood said 94½ per cent voted in favor of a walkout. About 6,000 nurses voted Monday.

Nurses, who could legally strike as early as Thursday, want an average 27-per-cent wage increase in a one-year contract. The increase would be about $2.20 an hour. Nurses currently earn between $14,604 and $17,448.

The hospital association has offered 19 per cent on minimum salary levels and 15 per cent on maximum levels on a one-year contract.

Guccione ducks porn hearing

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — Bob Guccione, publisher of Penthouse magazine, was not in provincial court Monday for the opening of a preliminary hearing into obscenity charges.

A Canada-wide warrant has been outstanding for the publisher since September. Guccione, the magazine, a distribution company in nearby Mississauga and its president were originally charged with distributing obscene material.

The charges are in connection with a special Penthouse "loving couples' collectors edition."

To protect the consumer, food advertisers are prohibited from putting medical endorsements in their ads. But your doctor will tell you that there are specific products which he recommends as part of a sensible diet.

The medical profession has conducted extensive research on the effects of diet in the prevention of heart disease. As a result, more and more doctors are encouraging their patients to develop a preventive program of fresh air and exercise and to make a number of changes in their eating habits. Since tests show that consumption of foods that are high in saturated fats tends to increase the risk of cardiovascular disorders*, doctors recommend limiting the intake of saturates; and substituting polyunsaturated for saturated fats wherever possible.

That's why products made from corn oil are often a part of dietary recommendations. Corn oil is high in polyunsaturates and low in saturates. And that's important to people who have been advised to eat carefully.

Fleischmann's margarine is made from 100% pure corn oil. It's pure corn oil that gives Fleischmann's the delicious flavour that so many people enjoy. That's what makes it Canada's leading health margarine... and an important part of a healthful diet.

No single product can ensure good health. A healthy life depends on an all-round program that includes plenty of fresh air, exercise and a well-balanced diet of sensible foods, like Fleischmann's.

But where your health is concerned, don't just take our word for it. Take this ad to your doctor and see what he has to say.

Juniors deserve credit, handled situation well

First, there was that threat of Victoria Cougars throwing a game in Seattle and then Tiger Williams getting bounced for using Scotty Bowman's head as a hockey puck. Or so the stories go. But hockey is in the news.

The Cougars certainly put the lie to all the throwing-the-game-talk, even if they didn't win (6-5) against Seattle in that damned-if-they-do, damned-if-they-didn't appearance. It was a tough spot to be in. Put yourself in their position. The Breakers had an equally big stake in that game and it's a credit to both clubs that they gave it all they had. And no, the story wasn't overplayed. There was a cloud over the affair because of a player's remark to a U.S. media type and the repercussions were heard loud and clear. It was then they were brought out in the open and cleared up, which was the proper thing to do. Think of the uproar if they hadn't been?

Then when the Cougars got suspended Barry Pederson (he of the facetious remark) back in harness, Pederson let it be known that he was sorry for what he had said, any embarrassment he may have caused and, if it was hockey, not words, that coach Jack Shupe wanted, he could supply that too. Pederson figured in six goals as the Cougars jumped into a two-game lead over the Breakers on the weekend; and the way things are going, maybe there should be an inquiry if the Cougars don't get to the Western Hockey League final. Certainly the Breakers have not been the opposition the Winter Hawks might have been. And Shupe did the only honorable thing he could in that situation — suspending Pederson — even if the action was considered academic by some.

Then to Vancouver and the Williams case. It never really did come out in the open what actually happened. Some say Williams' attack was deliberate, others say it was accidental, the referee never saw it, and if anyone there has the complete story, it hasn't been told. And until it is, I suppose Williams is the guy under the cloud with the issue still shrouded in mystery.

At any rate, the NHL top brass believed Bowman's story, Williams was suspended, the Canucks were unhappy with the sentence, and now are mulling over next year.

The end result, however, obviously was to be expected. The Sabres, it may be recalled, finished 40 points ahead of the Canucks in the regular season, but the Canucks gave it A for effort and weren't too far back when it counted.

Now the quesion is: what do they do to improve? Many of the players on the club certainly played well enough against the Sabres to promise well for next season, but what about Jere Gillis, Rick Blight, Denis Kearns and Ivan Boldirev? Where do they fit in.

It has been said that general manager Jake Milford expects to sign Boldirev, whose contract expires this year, but Boldirev has said his agent hasn't heard about it. Kearns, who has one more year to go on his contract, hasn't played that much lately and is not one of coach Harry Neale's favorite people. Blight, who has bad wheels and is coming off a second knee operation, was doing well enough when he left this time, but neither he nor Gillis have fulfilled all the Canucks expected of them. The most serious trouble, however, could be down on the farm. Dallas just hasn't got the over-all depth of good young players the Canucks can draw from and was constantly shorthanded most of the year while finishing further down than the Canucks.

In goalkeepers, the Canucks have some class in Glen Hanlon and Gary Bromley, but the depth is missing there too. Ken Ellacott is the only other qualifier from Dallas, was cast in the role of the Canucks' second line of defence Saturday but has never played an NHL game. That is pretty thin. The Canucks have apparently signed Swedish star Lars Molin and they do get the No 7 choice in the draft, but what happens next?

The rumor mill on the mainland is grinding out its daily bread, however thin, with the main theme that Milford will stay around awhile, so will coach Harry Neale, but that former Tronto Maple Leafs' general manager Jim Gregory, now chief of the NHL scouting division, is being touted as an assistant to Milford and then eventually he will take over.

And that would be full circle for Gregory. For it may be recalled that it was in Vancouver, before the swing to the NHL, that Gregory had his upbringing as a GM.

And that's for the time being. And it's been a long time being. Hasn't it?

Bruins join the NHL elite; Lafleur lost to Canadiens

Times News Services

National Hockey League quarter-final playoffs open Wednesday night in Philadelphia, Buffalo, Montreal and Boston but, if you listen to one of the many players who won't be there, don't try predicting winners.

"This game is wacky," said Ron Stackhouse. "Anything can happen."

The advice came late Monday after Stackhouse and Pittsburgh Penguins had been bounced 6-2 in Boston. Pittsburgh had held a 2-1 edge in the best-of-five series but blew two in a row as the Bruins fought back.

This is how things stack up for the quarter-final openers:

Philadelphia Flyers play New York Rangers;

Buffalo Sabres take on Chicago Black Hawks;

Montreal Canadiens face Minnesota North Stars;

And Boston Bruins meet New York Islanders.

The eight teams are the eight which had the most points after the 80-game schedule.

Peter McNab and Bob Miller scored in the first five minutes of the game to start the Bruins on their way. Dwight Foster and Wayne Cashman scored in the second period.

Bob Stewart scored Pittsburgh's first goal early in the third period but Boston assured itself of victory with Terry O'Reilly and Brad Park beating Pittsburgh goaltender Greg Millen. Nick Libett added a late goal for the Penguins.

The Philadelphia-New York Ranger series is the only repeat from last season when the Rangers knocked the Flyers out in five games.

Coach Pat Quinn said his team is healthy and revenge for last year's loss is being played down.

In Montreal, the Canadiens got some bad news after star right winger Guy Lafleur had his knee examined.

"Three days after the injury, the swelling still hasn't gone down," said Canadiens' physiotherapist Yvon Belanger. "If it subsides, fine, but we can't tell how long it would be after that that he would be back."

Lafleur, who missed six games in February after hurting the knee when checked by Washington's Robert Picard, went down again last Friday when the Canadiens eliminated Hartford Whalers.

Coach Claude Ruel said he'll use Mark Napier in Lafleur's place on a line with Steve Shutt and Pierre Larouche.

"The thing Mark has to do is go out and play his game," said Shutt. "He is not filling in for Guy Lafleur. He is playing as Mark Napier."

In the North Stars, the defending cup champions face a strong young club which has put the franchise in quarter-final play for the first time since 1973. Minnesota handled Toronto Maple Leafs easily last week, sweeping aside the Leafs in three games.

Buffalo Sabres, finishing second over all to Philadelphia during the regular season, are having their best season since making it to the cup final in 1974-75. Chicago Black Hawks last made it past quarter-finals in 1973-74.

The series between Boston Bruins and New York Islanders matches two teams which lost semi-finals last season, the Bruins falling to the Canadiens and the Islanders being upset by the Rangers.

"Not taking anything away from Pittsburgh," said Boston goaltender Gerry Cheevers, "but the Islanders are a much better team.

Rockets run ...and burn

HOUSTON (AP) — The plodding Houston Rockets decided to fight fire with fire with the running Boston Celtics in the fourth game of their National Basketball Association Eastern Conference semi-final playoff series Monday night.

The Rockets decided to run, too, and all they did was get burned for the 10th straight time as the Celtics flexed their muscle with another third-quarter surge and rolled to a 138-121 triumph.

Victory gave Boston a 4-0 sweep in the lopsided series and propelled them into the conference final against the Philadelphia-Atlanta winner.

In nine previous losses to the Celtics, six straight in the regular season, the Rockets seldom dared get in a foot race with the greyhound-quick Celtics.

And when they opened up Monday night, the Celtics were neither surprised nor dismayed by the change in tactics.

"We're happy when people run with us," said Boston forward Cedric Maxwell, who scored 27 points.

"We think we have a good transition game and can get down the court with the best of them.

"It didn't really surprise us that they did it. They had to do something different. They had played us nine times and nothing they did worked."

Houston coach Del Harris, noting that all the Celtics with the exception of Larry Bird played on a losing team last year, said:

"The Celtics are the best team I've seen in 20 years of coaching. They have four things that make them great — intelligence, strong passing, play-finishing ability and coaching."

Bird, who had been in a shooting slump, broke out with 34 points to lead all scorers and Moses Malone led the Rockets with 28 points and 15 rebounds.

Clipper ace with Cougars

Victoria Cougars will have a new player in the lineup tonight at Seattle while taking on Breakers in the third game of their best-of-seven Western Division playoff final in the Western Hockey League.

Cougars, who hold a 2-0 advantage in the series, have acquired the services of B.C. Junior League star John Newberry for the balance of the playoffs.

Newberry, a 17-year-old centre for Nanaimo Clippers, made impressive changes in the league record book during his rookie season.

He scored a record 84 goals, was two short of the assist mark with 101 and established a new record with a total of 185 points.

The six-foot, 185-pounder worked out with the Cougars on Monday and will be in action tonight.

Cougar centre Mark Morrison, who suffered a bruised heel during the game Sunday in Victoria, failed to appear at practice Monday and didn't inform coach Jack Shupe. He was suspended one game.

Seattle sat out two players for the first two games for breaking club disciplinary rules Friday.

John Neeld, the leading scorer for Breakers, was sent home to Vancouver on Monday while Tom Stanger was kept on and is expected to play tonight.

Breakers will also be without Joe Ward, who suffered a concussion during the Sunday contest. He returned to Seattle on Monday.

In the process of bottling up the Medicine Hat attack, the Pats notched two goals in the first period and a single in the second. Regina outscored Tigers 3-1 in the final period.

Broken cheekbone, 15 stitches, 2 black eyes

This is hockey?

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A broken cheekbone, 15 stitches across the face and two black eyes are Carey Haworth's testament to a weekend of hockey in Saginaw, Mich.

And Milwaukee Admirals, the team for which the 22-year-old Quebec City native plays, say they've had enough. Offering Haworth as their No. 1 exhibit, the Admirals declared Monday they won't play another game in what has become a violent playoff series against Saginaw Gears.

"Carey Haworth could have been killed," said Milwaukee coach Phil Whittliff.

The Gears won the first two games of the best-of-seven International Hockey League quarter-final series in their rink. The third game is scheduled here Wednesday night.

But Admirals' owner Lloyd Pettit said his team is through.

"We are hoping our severe move may have some effect on the wonderful game of hockey," said Pettit.

"Because of the unprovoked violence and the intent to injure on the part of Saginaw, we are withdrawing from any further Turner Cup play."

Six Milwaukee players were injured in the first two games.

"I hate to pull out of the playoffs because I think we had a chance to win," said Wittliff. "But I feel strongly against violence, so strongly that I am happy to go along with the decision."

Jack Riley, the league's commissioner, said from his Windsor, Ont., home he would view videotape of the games today.

"Don't misconstrue this — I don't condone violence — but hockey is a rough game," said Riley.

Milwaukee centre Claude St. Sauveur, a Sherbrooke, Que., native who spent the previous three seasons in the defunct World Hockey Association, was injured Saturday. When he went down, a fight started between Milwaukee's Doug Robb and Saginaw's Warren Holmes.

In Sunday's game, a brawl broke out with the Gears leading 5-1 and two players from Peterborough, Ont., Saginaw's Johnny Gibson and Milwaukee's Danny Eastman, confronted one another. Gibson put a headlock on Eastman, then punched Haworth to the ice.

Wittliff said the incident made him sick.

"I don't want to be connected with a league which condones that sort of thing"

Haworth said that, while one Gear restrained him, Gibson struck him.

"I fell to the ice and he kept on going — punching me," said Haworth. "I don't remember after that."

The Admirals claimed the violence was premeditated — that Gears' coach Don Perry was quoted after the Saturday scrap as saying some Gears "will be looking for Robb" in Sunday's game.

Robb, an Orillia, Ont., native and Milwaukee's leading scorer, escaped injury. But, "They obviously got to whomever they could," said Wittliff.

The Admirals said defenceman Real Paiement lost a tooth, winger Michel Bergeron was speared in the face with a stick, centre Fred Berry had a knee injury, and defenceman Francis Couturier received an eye cut when speared.

Gears spokesmen were not available for comment. A spokesman for the Admirals said his team was considering legal action.

Mikita was 'the perfect player': Reay

CHICAGO (AP) — "He was the perfect hockey player," said former coach Billy Reay of Stan Mikita, who officially retired Monday after 21 seasons with Chicago Black Hawks.

"He could shoot, stickhandle, make plays and play defence," reflected Reay. "The two years in which he led the National Hockey League in scoring, he also had the best defensive record in the league.

"He had pride and determination and he is such a decent human being that he made certain to invite me to this affair," said Reay. "I told Stan that I'd come out of retirement for a couple of hours just so that he could retire."

Reay had all the answers concerning Mikita's career. How he went from a terror in the league who spent much of his time in the penalty box to scoring champion, most valuable player and twice winner of the Lady Byng trophy for gentlemanly play.

Mikita became the only player in NHL history to win all three awards — the Byng, Art Ross trophy as scoring leader and Hart trophy as the league's most valuable player — in two successive seasons.

"When he came into the league there were only six teams and players had to exert themselves if they wanted to remain in the league, otherwise they'd take advantage of you," said Reay.

"Stan just exerted himself too much.

"But it didn't take him long to get smart.

"The time came when all you had to do was give him two wings and let him go, he'd take care of the rest.

"He was a wizard on the ice, always two plays and two moves ahead of everybody else."

Reay's eyes glowed when he talked about the famed Scooter Line with Mikita at centre, Ken Wharram at right wing and Ab McDonald at left wing.

"After we traded McDonald and got Doug Mohns to play defence for us," recalled Reay, "Stan kept pestering me about putting Mohns on the line with him and Wharram.

"I'd make excuses and put him off because we needed Doug on defence.

"Finally, he talked me into it and it turned out to be one of the greatest lines ever. "I'd take that Mikita line against any line in National League history."

Mikita called it "a sad day and I hope I don't break down."

He did momentarily. His voice cracked and tears welled in his eyes. But he regained his poise quickly enough as he did in scoring 1,461 points, including 541 goals, in his 21-year career.

Only Phil Esposito and Gordie Howe have more career points in the NHL and only Howe has more assists.

"We will have an appropriate ceremony next fall to retire Stan's jersey, No. 21," said owner Bill Wirtz.

"It will be the first Black Hawk jersey ever retired."

Island Open is where the families all gather

Always a good talking point, at the 19th hole as well as with the media, is the family touch. Therefore, no shortage of conversation after Sunday's qualifying round in the 31st annual Vancouver Island Open match-play golf championship.

Contenders for the CFAX Trophy are brothers Jon and Doug Mahovlic, Jamie and Sandy Harper, and Ed and Bob Beauchemin. Also related and in the championship flight are Dave Donaldson and uncle Harry.

There could have been more, but Mike couldn't match Jim Cook's pace. Barlow brothers Glen and Bruce missed, and Jim Girard is letting Dave do the chasing honors this season.

Impressive in his first try was Jamie Harper. Only 16, he's No. 4 in the line of good golfers in the Nanaimo family.

Sandy, 22, a former winner of the B.C. Junior title, feels Jamie has the tools to make it big in golf. Bruce, 20, and Ian, 19, are the other Harpers who give the family a good name.

Bruce passed up the Island Open to compete in the Vancouver match-play tournament while Ian is attending college in Southern California.

Jamie, who plays to a four handicap, was third low qualifier Sunday with a one-under 71 at Gorge Vale. That included three-putt jobs on the fifth and ninth holes.

Still, Jamie's putting pleased him. "I putted much better than I have been recently," he said. "I was having problems on the greens."

Cowichan professional Bill Wakeham, who expressed doubts a month ago about ever playing this year because of a mid-winter back operation, felt tired and weak but hasn't lost his touch . . . He qualified with a 73 after three-putting the 18th . . . Not qualifying but gallantly recording his 88 strokes was former Colwood pro Bill Court . . . Court has missed starting only once in 31 tournaments, that was three years ago after he undergoing an operation . . . A flock of good youngsters showing up again . . . Among them, Bob Lean (pronounced Lane) made it into the championship with an 80 . . . The son of Colwood women's champion Pat Derry, the 16-year-old suffered through 37 putts but was one of the four drawn into the starting field . . . The others lucking out in the turn of a card were Ed Beauchemin, Randy Gallop of Nanaimo and Dan Soberg of Cedar Hill . . . Oak Bay's Paul Harris also was at 73 and could be one of the darkhorses to watch . . . Harris has been turning in good scores lately but feels he needs "to play a bit more to get with it" . . . Happiest qualifier was Glen Meadows amateur Don Norbury . . . His 75 included a give-and-take exchange . . . He described his eagle two on the third as "a skulled wedge that never went more than a foot and a half in the air, hit the flag like a rocket and went straight down." . . . But, said Nobby, "I gave back the strokes on the 13 by taking a triple bogey." . . . No doubt about it, a fun guy who makes things interesting.

We've all seen those compact irons with a very shallow blade, called "low profile." They were designed for one of the U.S. manufacturers by Philippe Jeghers, a Belgian. It turns out that when Jeghers designed the club, he had never played golf. During the past year, however, he has taken lessons, has become a member of a club, and now plays the game with a vengeance.

He also has been enlightened.

"I assure you," he says, "that it is easier to design clubs than hit a ball with them."

FINALLY: Jim Rutlege, winner of the B.C. Open last fall, is heading for Texas and his second attempt at obtaining a PGA Approved Players' Card . . . Muriel Turner captured the Kate McRae tournament for women at Cedar Hill . . . Marg Thope finshed second and Joan Avery third . . . George Laird and Jack Ringheim both finished with net 69s to tie for the Rainbow Cup at Victoria . . . They'll play off next weekend . . . It didn't take Sam Margolis, introduced to the game within the past year, very long to find out what the game is about . . . The junior came up with an ace on Cedar Hill's 15th hole last week . . . Also scoring aces in recent days, both on the 8th at Oak Bay, were Carl Schwantje and George Russell.

A brighter day for Dennis

By Associated Press

Dennis Eckersley was not sharp on opening day against the Milwaukee Brewers last week and it looked as if it was going to be another one of those dull baseball days against Detroit Tigers on Monday.

But after throwing 34 pitches and working out of a bases-loaded jam in the first inning, the picture brightened considerably. And as Eckersley straightened himself out, so did Boston Red Sox, with a 3-1 victory.

"I didn't have a good slider, but I could've pitched all day," said Eckersley.

He allowed the Tigers three hits in seven innings and was replaced after a 56-minute rain delay, allowing Tom Burgmeier to finish up.

"I had to get out of there after that long delay," he said, "I felt much better than I did in Milwaukee my first time out.

"That time I just stunk."

Eckersley was rocked for three home runs in Boston's 9-5 loss to the Brewers last week.

In other American League action Monday night, Minnesota Twins tripped California Angels 5-3, Texas Rangers beat Cleveland Indians 7-4 and Seattle Mariners stopped Oakland A's 7-1.

Dan Meyer and Bruce Bochte drove in two runs apiece during a five-run second inning to carry Seattle over Oakland behind Glenn Abbott's four-hitter. Billy Martin was ejected from a game for the first time as manager of the A's during Seattle's big inning.

In the National League it may be a new season, but not any different than any other for Bill Robinson.

He's still trying to prove himself, it seems.

Once a player of great promise, Robinson has had a checkered career with four major league teams, most recently Pittsburgh Pirates. He almost joined a fifth this year, but vetoed a trade that the Pirates made with Houston Astros during the off season.

Robinson says in so many words that he would rather come off the bench as a defensive replacement in the late innings in Pittsburgh than start anywhere else.

And Monday night, he not only provided the Pirates with late-inning defence but late-inning offence as well, hitting a 10th-inning home run to provide Pittsburgh with a 5-4 victory over Chicago Cubs.

"Anything else would be secondary compared to playing in Pittsburgh," said the veteran outfielder who will be 36 in June.

About the proposed trade for Houston pitcher Joaquin Andujar:

"I have no animosity whatsoever toward anyone. I know a trade is all business. It's nothing personal."

In other action, Cincinnati Reds shaded San Francisco Giants 6-5, Houston Astros edged Atlanta Braves 5-4 and San Diego Padres stopped Los Angeles Dodgers 2-1.

Robinson entered Monday night's game in the top of the seventh as a defensive replacement in left field. The homer, in his second time at bat, came off Bruce Sutter's money pitch, his split-finger fastball.

ON HIS WAY OUT as he wages futile second-inning argument with umpire Larry McCoy is Billy Martin, manager of Oakland A's. Seconds later, McCoy tossed Martin out of game, making it first time this season Billy had been ejected. Seattle Mariners scored five times in second inning at Oakland and went on to whip A's 7-1. Codex best in the west, but won't run in derby

By The Associated Press

Codex has emerged as the best in the West and Plugged Nickle as the best in the East, but a dream match between the the two in the Kentucky Derby will stay just a dream.

Codex, a late-developing colt whose trainer initially didn't think enough of his prospects to nominate him for the Kentucky Derby, scored an impressive victory in the $330,250 Hollywood Derby on Sunday. It was Codex's second triumph in two weeks. He won the Santa Anita Derby as a 25-1 shot March 30.

The third wagering choice at 4-1 in the Hollywood Derby, the Eddie Delahoussaye-ridden Codex, covered the 1⅛-mile distance in 1:47 2-5, slicing one-fifth of a second off the stakes record set by Flying Paster last year.

After charging from back in the pack, he was two lengths in front of Rumbo, also the runner-up in the Santa Anita Derby.

Wayne Lukas, who saddles Codex, first realized following the Santa Anita Derby that he hadn't nominated the colt, owned by the Tartan Stable, for the Kentucky Derby on May 3. Although the disappointment lingers, Lukas apparently has learned to live with it.

"Omitting him was just an oversight on my part," said Lukas, who nominated 10 other Tartan Stable three-year-olds for the Kentucky Derby.

"But the owner accepts it, and I accept it. All I can do now is try to get him ready for the Preakness."

Codex paid $10.60, $4.40 and $5.

Two highly regarded West Coast runners, Jaklin Klugman and Raise a Man, fared poorly.

Jaklin Klugman, winner of the California Derby at Golden Gate Fields, faded to fourth, almost nine lengths behind the winner. Raise a Man, who ran fifth in the Santa Anita Derby after going off the 3-5 favorite, wound up 10th.

While Codex won't be running in the Kentucky Derby, the horses who finished second, third and fourth Sunday probably will.

Riley Cofer, Jaklin Klugman's trainer, said his horse was coming off a five-week layoff after a bout with a virus and said:

"I wasn't disappointed and I think we'll still be going to Kentucky."

The victory was worth $195,250 to the Tartan Stable and raised Codex's career earnings to $362,350.

Connors looks ahead after McEnroe victory

By The Associated Press

Jimmy Connors beat John McEnroe 7-5, 6-3 Sunday for the second time in three meetings this year, then turned his attention to future goals.

"My game is fine now," said Connors, trying to bounce back from a disappointing — by his lofty standards — season in 1979. "I would like to play good tennis and win in the U.S. and French Opens and at Wimbledon."

Connors scored three service breaks in each set in defeating McEnroe in a four-man tournament in Tokyo to earn first prize of $110,000 from the total purse of $250,000.

"I was in good condition and I played well," said Connors. "I did all that I have to do on the court."

McEnroe, who described the match on the slow-surfaced court as tiresome, earned $70,000.

Roscoe Tanner rallied to defeat Ilie Nastase 6-7, 7-5, 6-2 for third place in the tournament, the 1980 Suntory Cup.

Vitas Gerulaitis of the U.S., who has never beaten Bjorn Borg in a tournament match, defeated the Swede 7-5, 5-7, 6-4 Sunday in their exhibition in Mexico. The loss was the second in the series for Borg, who bowed to Italy's Adriano Panatta on Saturday. Panatta beat Mexico's Raul Ramirez 6-4, 7-6 on Sunday.

Meanwhile, Tracy Austin pocketed another $30,000 by beating Regina Marsikova of Czechoslovakia 4-6, 6-1, 6-0 to win a $150,000 tournament at Hilton Head Island, S.C.

The 14-year-old U.S. star has earned more than $900,000 in her 18 months as a professional and climbed to the top of the U.S. Women's Tennis Association computer rankings by .094 points over Martina Navratilova.

In another men's event, Ivan Lendl, 19, of Czechoslovakia, whipped Eddie Dibbs of the U.S. 6-1, 6-3 to win a World Championship Tennis series tournament in Houston.

At Sydney, Australia, three-time Wimbledon winner John Newcombe staged a fighting recovery to down fellow Australian Ken Rosewall in the final of the inaugural $40,000 Champion of Champions tennis tournament Monday night.

Newcombe, 35, charged back against his 45-year-old opponent to win the match 4-6, 6-4, 6-4 indoors.

The victory was worth $8,000. Rosewall collected $4,000 for his four days' work.

Horsemen agree to contract

EDMONTON (CP) — Horsemen and the Western Canada Racing Association have reached a contract agreement, ending a dispute that halted thoroughbred racing in Calgary.

Thoroughbred racing will resume Wednesday at Calgary's Stampede Park, a joint statement said. Edmonton's Northlands Park is also covered in the new five-year contract.

Horsemen, represented by the Horsemen's Benevolent Protection Association, will receive 57½ per cent of a 9½-per-cent combined average of the pari-mutuel handle of the two tracks for the first two years. The purse split for the final three years of the contract will be determined by binding arbitration.

High school rugby playoffs set

Oak Bay Barbarians finished the season unbeaten in nine matches to claim first place in the Greater Victoria High School Rugby League.

Semi-final playoffs among the top four teams open Wednesday afternoon with fourth-place Reynolds tackling Barbarians at Oak Bay High School while Claremont Spartans and Mt. Douglas Mountainmen tangle at Reynolds.

The game between Spartans and Mountainmen will also serve as a tie-breaker to determine second and third place.

Semi-final winners meet for the Howard Russell Cup April 23 and the top three finishers in the league qualify for the British Columbia championship tournament May 1-3 at the University of Victoria.

Playoffs among the bottom four teams for the Lt. Col. Hodgkins Trophy also start Wednesday with Belmont Braves meeting Parkland Panthers and Esquimalt Dockers facing Parkland Panthers.

Panthers blanked Stingers 14-0 in the final league match Monday. Ted Johnson and Joe Benning each scored a try and Larry Kubek kicked two penalty goals for Parkland, which held a 6-0 advantage at half time.

Orono keeps title

CARACAS (Reuter) — Rafael Orono of Venezuela retained his World Boxing Council super-flyweight title Monday with a points decision over Ramon Soria of Argentina.

The fight was even until the 13th round when Orono, who was defending his WBC title for the first time, forced a standing eight count against the challenger.

Two share tenpin honor

NANAIMO — Dave Tabbernor of Victoria and Lloyd Hansen of Nanaimo each rolled a handicap total of 1,133 Sunday at B&G Bowl to share top spot in the sixth and final round of the Molson's Vancouver Island tenpin bowling series.

Tabbernor, a Coast Guard employee with a 164 average, rolled a 989 scratch series and added a handicap of 144 while Hansen, a 156-average bowler, connected for a 957 scratch and added a 176 handicap.

Both bowlers earn a berth in the series championship finals Saturday at Victoria's Mayfair Lanes.

Three-game preliminaries in the final will start at 11 a.m.

Third through fifth places also went to Victoria bowlers. Lee Doney was third with 1,022-76 — 1,098 and was followed by Bernie LeBlanc (977-116 — 1,093) and Harry Collister (939-152 — 1,091).

Soundmakers sought

the collectors

By KEN RICHARDSON

One of the earliest talking instruments, the Graphophone or Gramophone, named from Phonograph which was first patented by Thomas Edison as the original successful reproducing instrument in 1878, was intended as a business dictating machine. It was quite naturally hailed as a marvel of communication. However, it took a further 18 years of experimentation before it became a marketable product; it was, indeed as late as 1895 that it reached the general public. The cabinet would in most instances be beautifully finished and often stylishly ornamented, the horns so extended they needed support from a tripod.

Until 1908 discs recorded on one side only, achieved growing popularity. Then, Emile Berliner made one of the earliest flat discs also recorded on one side only.

Finally, Columbia brought out the first two-sided discs. From the collector's standpoint it is interesting to note that Berliner and Eldrige Johnson went into partnership, utilizing the later's spring-driven motor which produced uniform speed throughout the recording. Known as the Victor Talking Machine Company they introduced the universally known "His Master's Voice" trademark of the dog-and-horn. The use of this famous mark persisted until 1969 when it was — unaccountably — discontinued. The records of those early years are becoming popular and can be found without too much difficulty in old boxes shunted away in attics and elsewhere.

Estate sales and auction shows seem to feature well preserved specimens with surprising frequency. But watch particularly garage sale offerings — often an unexpected source. Auctions, too can be rewarding.

A few early Edisons found recently were in excellent condition. One Gem Graphophone, described as a "talking machine exhibition outfit" and complete with oak carrying case, concert horn and hearing tubes for two persons is considered a rare find. Look around those back lots, under as opposed to on tables. Should be operational — or made so with but minor repairs by a mechnically-minded collector.

At one auction I attended, brisk bidding for a fine Amberola Model 30 brought a closing price of $295. Demand is rising.

Q. Is it a fact that much of what was called Chippendale furniture was actually Georgian in style?

A. I'm afraid so. Chippendale devoted great efforts toward escaping from the prevailing Georgian style of the 18th century and, instead concentrated on the development of the French styles of Louis XV.

Q. We have an old phone still clinging to the wall in our farmhouse. Has it a value of any kind? D.P.

A. At a recent auction an oak wall phone realized $43. A maple wall phone $68 Desk and table models of the same vintage are, for some reason, not so valuable; they're worth only $25.

Dear Mr. Vichert: I'm a 13-year-old girl and it seems that every time I get close to a guy I get nervous.

When my boyfriend gets close to me I start to back away or make up some excuse to leave or go to the washroom. Although he understands me, I don't want to be like that.

Answer: I think your feelings are quite natural. You cannot be rushed into caring for someone, nor can you show your affection just because it is expected. You should be comfortable in how and when you show your affection.

I feel that 13 is a bit soon to become physical in a relationship and you have every right to set some limits. I would suggest that you try and make your relationship one that does not put this stress on you, and I would suggest doing this by talking with your boyfriend.

Dear Dr. Powell: This is not a letter about boys, parents or suicides, but a letter that will probably interest most teenage girls. I am a 16-year-old girl who would like to keep in good physical shape. I am not overweight but feel I'm not giving my body the attention it needs. I was wondering if you could recommend an exercise program that will tend to these needs.

Answer: There is increasing interest in fitness by teens. The best person to give you an exercise program is your physical education teacher. There are many physical fitness programs you can follow yourself. If you are an early riser the morning is a very good time but far too many mornings are rushed and it requires a lot of self-discipline to find that extra time every morning.

An activity program is something to consider. This can include any activity you enjoy doing; swimming, running, tennis, squash or cross country skiing. Plan to include at least 30 minutes of physical activity into your daily timetable and try to find this time to keep physically fit every day for the rest of your life.

Dear Rev. Cotter: I'm 14 and I have been going out with a guy who is 16. A couple of months ago we went to his place and his parents were not home so we went to bed. I didn't really mind it until I found out I was pregnant. I was thinking about abortion but I'm afraid my parents might find out.

Answer: You are afraid of the results of your actions, you must face what you have done, and this may mean that you must face your parents. It probably is too late for you to have an abortion.

You need counselling to a far greter degree than can be given in this column. I suggest that you call the Children's Aid Society of the Ministry of Human Resources.

Young readers' questions on human relations and sex are answered by a panel including Marion Powell, physician; Graham Cotter, clergyman; Dr. Saul Levine, psychiatrist, and social worker Bruce Vichert.

Police in New York are trying to piece together what happened to actress-model Melonie Haller, who was found semi-conscious and slouched in a Long Island Rail Road car after a weekend stay in Long Island. Haller, who in 1977 appeared as the female "sweathog" in the Welcome Back, Kotter television series, was badly bruised, police said. Myra Haller said her 23-year-old daughter had spent the weekend at the home of Roy Radin, a theatrical producer known for staging shows for police associations. A houseman at the mansion said Haller had been drinking and fell down a flight of stairs. Mrs. Haller said her daughter never drank. Doctors were running tests on the blonde actress Sunday after she lapsed into unconsciousness. She was listed in guarded condition, authorities said.

Ask Sir Laurence Olivier what he thinks of his latest film, The Jazz Singer, and he'll tell you in one word — "trash." The movie, a remake of the Al Jolson talkie, is to open in New York in December and is already being touted with full-page newspaper advertisements. It will co-star Neil Diamond and Lucie Arnaz. Olivier says he dislikes everything about it. "It was damned embarrassing enough to do once." he said in an interview with the New York Daily News, "but then they switched directors and asked me to go through the whole silly thing again. That makes it doubly embarrassing. It's trash."

Pope John Paul knelt and kissed the Shroud of Turin in St. John the Baptist Cathedral during a visit to Turin, Italy. A custodian rolled open a red linen cover inside a silver casket containing the Shroud as the pope knelt. The cloth is said to have wrapped Christ's body after it was removed from the Cross. The shroud has been kept in Turin for 400 years. It bears the image of a bearded man with the wounds said to have been suffered by Christ. The Pope said it was providential that the shroud could now be studied with advanced scientific techniques. A team of U.S. and European experts have turned up evidence that the cloth was associated with times and places of Christ's lifetime. However, the Vatican has not allowed a carbon-14 dating test on grounds that the test might damage part of the linen.

Dear Abby:

You sent me a list of 12 questions to be answered yes or no; you told me if there were four or more "yeses" I should go to just one Alcoholics Anonymous meeting. On this, my first anniversary of sobriety, I just have to say thank you.

Ray

Dear Ray:

To celebrate your sobriety, I am printing Alcoholics Anonymous' 12 questions for others who wonder if they have a problem.

1) Have tried to stop drinking for a week or so but only lasted a couple of days? Yes ( ); No ( ).

Most of us in A.A. made all kinds of promises to ourselves and to our families. We could not keep them. Then we came to A.A., which said: "Just try not to drink today."

2) Do you wish people would mind their own business about your drinking — stop telling you what to do? Yes ( ); No ( ).

In A.A. We do not tell anyone to do anything. We just talk about our own drinking, the trouble we got into and how we stopped.

3) Have you ever switched from one kind of drink to another in hope that this would keep you from getting drunk? (Yes ( ); No ( ).

We tried all kinds of ways. Weak drinks. Just beer. Or only drank on weekends. But we usually got drunk eventually.

4) Have you had a drink in the morning during the past year? Yes ( ); No ( ).

Do you need a drink to get started, or to stop shaking?

5) Do you envy people who can drink without getting into trouble? Yes ( ); No ( ).

At one time or another, most of us have wondered why we were not like most people, who really can take it or leave it.

6) Have you had problems connected with drinking during the past year? Yes ( ); No ( ).

Be honest! Doctors say that if you have a problem with alcohol and keep on drinking, it will get worse, never better.

7) Has your drinking caused trouble at home? Yes ( ); No ( ).

8) Do you ever try to get "extra" drinks at a party because you do not get enough?

9) Do you tell yourself you can stop drinking anytime you want to, even though you keep getting drunk when you don't mean to? Yes ( ); No ( ).

Many of us kidded ourselves into thinking that we drank because we wanted to. After we came into A.A., we found out we couldn't stop.

10) Have you missed days at work because of drinking? Yes ( ); No ( ).

Many of us admit now that we "called in sick" lots of times when the truth was that we were hung-over.

11) Do you "blackout"? Yes ( ); No ( ). (A blackout is when there are drinking hours or days we cannot remember.)

12) Have you ever felt that your life would be better if you did not drink? Yes ( ); No ( ).

Irene Nieman shows off hand-crank model with later edition behind

Still sewing strong after a full century

By BRENDA DALGLISH

Since the first Singer sewing maching was manufactured in 1851, millions of the machines have assisted women with their household chores.

They've been carried across desert and jungle, by oxen cart and barge, they've sewed wedding dresses, quilts, sails and even book bindings.

One incident has been reported of people travelling up a jungle river when they came upon Coca Cola products. Someone suggested that it was probably the first product from civilization that had arrived in the area but they were quickly corrected and told that Singer sewing machines came before even Coke.

Singer lead the way in other fields as well. It was the first company to introduce installment-plan payments.

In years gone by a sewing machine was a household necessity, now fewer women use them.

Nevertheless they are a common item in most homes and Singer is probably the best known of sewing machine manufacturers.

Recently Tom Ranson owner of the Singer Sewing Centre in the Hillside shopping centre ran an contest to find the oldest Singer machine in Victoria and Irene Nieman's hand crank machine, estimated to have been manufactured during the period 1880 to 1890, took the prize.

Nieman bought the machine 30 years ago after answering a classified ad in the Times. She paid $20 for it then and says that even though it was quite a bit of money for a machine that was then at least 50 years old she was pleased with the service it provided.

She used it while her family was growing up to make clothes and only recently retired it to the attic.

Nieman says the machine probably has another 100 years of service left in it but said she guesses it has more value as an antique than for work.

Ranson said he determined the oldest machine from the several hundred entries he received by checking serial numbers.

Singer machines manufactured after 1900 have serial numbers that were preceeded by a letter of the alphabet. Nieman's was the only machine that had a six-digit number, other hand crank machines from the same period which were entered had seven digit numbers.

Ranson is trying to pinpoint the exact date of manufacture by checking with Singer's head office.

Designers into pants for autumn

By SERENA SINCLAIR
Christian Science Monitor

MILAN, Italy — When in doubt, wear pants. The Italian designers, artful to the last one, hedged the entire hemline controversy in their big autumn shows recently and showed seven pairs of pants to every three skirts.

But what pants! They're as controversial in shape and length as ever a mini or a maxi was. Abandon those sprayed-on jeans and get into the newer full pants, many with a distinct jodhpur flavor emphasized by contrasting piping that rounds the hip and goes down the leg.

Knickerbockers are the new vehicle for showing a leg, and they're everywhere. While most are in traditional British tweeds or in velvets, and cup in sharply below your knee, those of Gioria Armani, Italy's star tailor, have a unique feature. It's called air. These knickerbockers are gathered into a two-inch band at the knee, but it doesn't hug at all. It stands stiffly out away from your skin so there is no constriction, and there is air and space.

Italian coats are chunky, easy, raglan-sleeved and look like the steamer coats you see on old Cunard Line posters. One important touch they all share: Buttons virtually have been banished. A single button high on the side of the ring neck holds everything together. Armani's coats are lean and spare, falling straight from this ring neck in firm gray ribbed wool.

Suit jackets, sweaters and blouses all have diagonal closings (at Armani the slanting buttons are hidden under a fly closing). Diagonals swoop up coat hem fronts, make hankie-hem party dresses, even serve as the decorative stitch on knitwear. (By the way, the new look is to tuck your sweater into skirt or pants.)

Scarves and shawls are noticeable by their absence, and the keep-warm news is pretty three-quarters mohair jackets in white, crisscrossed all over with gold kid. (This crisscross lattice motif is strong all through the autumn clothes.)

Leather never has been more vital or abundant in Italian fashion, possibly because of the strong "investment dressing" mood. The soft caramel kid pants, with hip pleats and tapered ankles, look fresh and unaggressive with tweed spencer jackets and a white silk blouse frilling at the throat in the new crossed-over way.

Sheepskin jackets won't ever seem the same again to the several thousand buyers and members of the press at the Milan Fair complex.

They are cut the new Italian way in pale creams and honeys. They ripple out at the back, flaring and swinging in deep folds, their hems sometimes embroidered in gold. And other embroidery popped up in the form of enchanting Romanian folklore designs in pink and pale green to enliven officer neck or deep wrist cuffs on white wool coats.

These whites and honeys were the rare light touches in a palette for autumn 1980 that's deep, somber, chic and practical. Brown is on a terrific comeback and makes black look a little old-hat. You get every shade, from beige through taupe to caramel, chestnut and strongest of all, bitter chocolate. It's marvelous when married to white, as in coat and pants ensembles.

Brown nights, though, could be sad and unflattering, but not in Italian hands. They use gleaming satin or velvet and dress it up with giant gold necklets and disc earrings.

The hemline controversy, at the Italian shows, never started. The designers in Milan simply showed half a dozen lengths, some mini, some kneetop, many 2 inches below. It's not an economic season for taking wild chances, and they know it.

Infotel response gauged

The federal Infotel program which provides taped information on a wide variety of topics has been suspended temporarily while its value is being assessed.

"We have been running this service for 15 months now and we are interested to hear what the public thinks about it," says Art Scott, district manager for Consumer and Corporate Affairs Canada.

About 60,000 calls were received in Victoria and Vancouver during the period.

"We noticed the calls followed a seasonal trend. At Christmas there were many requests for suggestions on toys and then the interest changed to skiing.

"If the service was continuing through the spring there would be an increase in calls for sport fishing."

Scott said the department will decide whether to extend the experiment, expand the program or abandon it entirely.

Public comments or questions about the tape program are welcome, he said.

He can be reached at 388-3343.

By DR. L.L. COLEMAN

Occasionally, when I have a fit of coughing or sneezing, I tend to lose my urine. It is most embarrassing and has ruined my social life. Do I have to go through life with this burden?

Mrs.C.R.Y.

Dear Mrs. Y.

Women who have borne a number of children sometimes develop a weakness of the muscles in and around the vagina and the bladder. Sometimes a small bulge of the bladder will protrude into the vaginal wall. This is known as a "cystocele." When there is a period of laughing, sneezing, coughing, or the lifting of a heavy weight, extra pressure is exerted in the pelvic area. Then a small amount of urine leaks through. The sphincter that normally keeps urine from flowing may become relaxed, causing extreme urgency in the need to urinate.

There really is no reason why you should have to go through life burdened by this unpleasant situation. Examination of the bladder, the vagina and the pelvic organs can readily show the basic reason for this condition. In many instances it is remediable.

In mild cases, a pessary can be inserted into the vagina to maintain the normal relationship between the bladder, the uterus, the cervix, and the vagina.

In other instances, surgery may become necessary. The operation is not a difficult one. It is remarkably safe. The refined surgical techniques, coupled with the safety of anesthesia, should give courage to the many people who are distressed by this problem. The operation consists of repairing the ligaments and muscles that have been loosened by childbirth. Incidentally, childbirth is not the only reason why these muscles and ligaments become loosened. Many people as they grow older may, without childbirth, suffer from this annoyance. The operations are successful and gratifying.

Dear Doctor:

I had an X-ray of the chest when I was applying for a new job. I was flabbergasted when the doctor told me that I had a small patch of tuberculosis. Is that possible?

Mr. O.T.H.

Dear Mr. H.:

It is indeed possible. I have written repeatedly that tuberculosis is still a treacherous disease and is yet high on the list of communicable infections.

It is true that there has been a progressive decline through drugs and better nutrition — yet it does exist and therefore I urge everyone who has had a chronic cough for a long period of time to have its cause investigated.

Hot baths dehydrate body looking great

Dear Rena Paul:

I love soaking in a hot bath at night, but everytime we stay at my mother-in-law's, she says I should go easy on the hot water because it's bad for my skin. Is she right or is she just stingy and thinks only about her water bill.

Jim M.

Dear Jim:

She may very well be thinking about her water bill — but she's also right. Hot baths dehydrate the body excessively, dilate the capillaries under your skin and generally put greater stress on your system. A lukewarm bath will cleanse you just as well without harming sensitive tissues, — and save on your water bill! If you think the water cools off too quickly, just add warm water a little more frequently.

Dear Rena Paul:

People are always teasing me at the office about my "after hours" job, since I constantly have dark circles under my eyes. Honestly, I get 8-10 hours sleep a night and I'm not tired. What's wrong with me?

Jane P.

Dear Jane:

Everyone has circles under their eyes, to some extent. Assuming your health is O.K., the darkness of the area under the eyes, is basically a matter of heredity — and there's not much you can do about it, except hide it with a cosmetic concealer. There are a variety on the market, usually in lipstick form and off-white in colour. Make sure you don't apply too much or you'll quickly resemble Frankenstein's daughter. A thin film, gently blended, should leave the area under your eyes only a shade lighter than the surrounding skin. A liquid foundation, matching your skin colour and blended over your entire face and over the concealer will smooth out any colour difference, caused by the concealer.

Dear Rena Paul:

All my life I've gone quite happily without any make-up. I just couldn't see the point. Lately my teenage daughter has been at me to "sparkle up" my face with a little colour. No matter what I do though, I still look artificial ad clown-like. Are thre some types who just shouldn't wear makeup?

Mrs. Lenard T.

Dear Mrs. T.:

The word "shouldn't" implies that there's some moral dilemma. There isn't. Putting make-up on, and the effect it has on people are two experiences which are about as 'subjective' as you can get. The human species is able to adapt with incredible agility. That's why we accept people's appearances so readily, altough we all look quite different from each other. What face you show to the world depends a lot on your priorities and interests. Obviously if you have accepted your 'natural' face for so many years, make-up will look very strange to you. It could be that as the application of makeup takes a certain amount of dexterity and 'painterly' abilities, you may be applying it with a heavy hand. Try going once to a professional make-up artist who can show you how it's done. Your daugnter may be right in that you need to "sparkle up" a bit. Keep in mind that as you get older, the natural colour will drain from your face somewhat — so lipstick and blush-on can give you that extra lift. Yet remember that ironicaly enough, as you get older make-up will also show up more — so moderation is extremely important! Good luck with the new you!

Bouncing into the black

Miss Tennis, Tracy Austin, 17, hair in pigtails and looking like a commercial for California outdoor life, has a habit of bouncing on her toes when she awaits serve from her opponent. In defeating immense-looking Regina Marsikova at Hilton Head, S.C., Sunday, she bounced up and down throughout the match in a display of energy that the Brobdingnagian and comparatively slow-footed Marsikova must have found frustrating. Austin's reward for a hyperactive afternoon: $30,000.

CUTE BOOTS from around 1900 displayed by Joanne Hoffman were among items offered at Antique Fair in Esquimalt Sports Centre. There were paintings, furniture, knick knacks, china and other collectibles on display at event which ran at the weekend. More that 50 dealers from throughout B.C. displayed wares and offered bargains which, they say, are one of the best bets in times of inflation and wise buyers can avoid savings shrinkage.

Tough quotas don't hit style

OTTAWA (CP) — When the federal government imposed tough quotas on shoe imports in 1977, the worry was that the result would be shortages, higher prices and poorer style.

There were shortages and prices soared. Some retailers were forced to go to a black market for quotas to ensure they had enough shoes to stay in business.

But the matter of shoe style was a different story. And the prices for smart styles are at least competitive.

Small Canadian companies like Natale, owned by two Italian-Canadians, are watching European imports in style, price and quality. This spring, Natale has dress sandals in bright colors like fuschia, blue or peanut at $85 a pair. They look as good as the always-popular imported Amalfi.

Jean Lefebvre, manager of Le Bottier, an Ottawa retail shoe store, said another Canadian company, Christina, which was first noted for its high fashion boot, has one of the best shoes in its class.

Calderone, a store which sells a wide selection of European designer shoes, says Canadian-made Thomas Wallace shoes are its bread and butter.

"Canadian manufacturers have smartened up," says Nancie Middleton, manager of another Ottawa outlet. "Their shipments arrive on time now and their style is much better.

"People don't mind paying the price. They will buy good footwear, but they expect it to last."

Most good dress shoes this spring, Canadian or imported, start at $70 and go up. European and United States designed shoes are more expensive.

Watches skip hard times

NEW YORK (AP) — Business may be bad for some people, but makers of expensive luxury goods keep coming out with new ideas — on the theory, presumably, that the rich still have money to spend. The latest entry, from the Omega Watch Corp., is billed as the thinnest watch in the world, asking price $9,000. As they say, you can't be too rich or too thin.

Thin in this case means less than one-sixteenth of an inch, or 1.48 millimeters — as thin as the watch's lizard strap, thinner than an after-dinner mint. This technological feat is accomplished by arranging the components around the face rather than behind it, as in other watches. To dramatize this, one version has a transparent back so that the hands appear to touch the wearer's skin.

Actually, the hands don't move. They're just lines printed on toothed disks, and it's the disks that turn — clockwise, of course.

The round face is set into a rectangular case of 18-karat brushed gold about an inch wide, less than an inch and a half long — a size that might be worn by a man or a woman. The time is set by pressing a recessed button with an accompanying gold key.

Before the Judge

An Alberta teacher was fined a total of $300 Monday in Victoria provincial court for shoplifting offences Friday in downtown Victoria.

Marita Karen Rudolph of Hughenden, Alta., pleaded guilty to theft over $200 and theft under $200.

Crown counsel Robert Mulligan told Judge Blake Allan that security officers at Eaton's spotted Rudolph shortly before 5 p.m. placing articles in a bag and leaving the store without paying for them. When checked, the bag contained a swim suit, a bathing cap, plate, vase, lantern, and carving with a total value of $233.40. Also found was a blouse valued at $24 from Dalmy's, 709 Yates, which was also stolen.

Duty legal aid lawyer Steven Kelliher said the woman, visiting relatives during the spring school break, was in serious need of counselling and did not recognize the emotional and psychological problem she had.

In asking for a conditional discharge, Kelliher said Rudolph would probably lose her job if convicted.

Allan rejected the application for a discharge and fined the woman $200 for the more serious offence and $100 for the other charge.

A White Rock man who pleaded guilty to possession of stolen property was given a 30-day jail term by Allan.

Thomas Brian Jarvis, 33, was also placed on 12 months probation and ordered to take alcohol counselling as directed.

Court was told Sidney RCMP were called late Thursday afternoon in connection with a shoplifter at the Shoppers Drug Mart. When officers arrived, Jarvis had been followed to Safeways nearby, where he walked out with some meat, a bottle of pop and a glass. Police found him in bushes across the street, consuming liquor and intoxicated.

Jarvis had criminal convictions for impaired driving, assaulting a peace officer, theft, and causing a disturbance. He was last convicted Oct. 23, 1979, in Quesnel for theft under $200 and was given a suspended sentence and placed on a year's probation. Mulligan said the probation officer in Quesnel had not seen Jarvis for three months when he was to report once monthly.

Judge Lorne Pearce found a 22-year-old man guilty of causing a disturbance by shouting and levied the maximum $500 fine.

Frank Maxwell Greenwood, 485 Island Highway, was convicted after testimony during a trial which indicated Colwood RCMP had been called to a noisy party on Scafe Road at 4 a.m. Feb. 17.

While officers were breaking up the crowd, Greenwood was one of a group on the street and was yelling and screaming at Constable Peter Backus.

Allan fined a 19-year-old youth $125 and said the amount was less than normal because the youth made a written apology to his victim.

Marc Joseph Lanthier, 643 Speed, pleaded guilty to common assault.

Mulligan said Lanthier and four others were in a taxi in the early hours of Dec. 8 when the female driver heard a bottle break on the road nearby. When she blamed someone in the vehicle for throwing it, Lanthier became upset. The driver stopped her cab and ordered Lanthier out, at which point Lanthier leaned over, grabbed her hair and began hitting her in the head. She was able to call for help over the radio and all the youths fled except Lanthier.

Defence lawyer Lloyd Johnson told the court Lanthier was quite drunk at the time and has since sent a letter of apology to the victim.

Fined $400 for having care and control of a vehicle while having a blood-alcohol reading over .08 was Douglas Ian Newman, 43, of North Vancouver.

Air rifle toter on probation

Roger Artel, 19, was given a suspended sentence in Victoria county court Monday and placed on probation for one year after pleading guilty to possession of an air rifle for a purpose dangerous to the public peace.

Judge Peter Millward also ordered Artel to perform 30 hours of community work service and prohibited him from owning or possession firearms for five years.

The incident April 22 at an Esquimalt Road store arose when another man who was drunk spat at and insulted Artel who mistook him for someone else.

Juvenile jail curbs urged

Attorney-General Allan Williams has asked federal Solicitor-General Robert Kaplan to introduce legislation that would allow B.C. to limit the conditions under which juvenile delinquents may be jailed.

The request, revealed in a letter sent last week to the Vancouver Island branch of the John Howard Society, arises from two recent B.C. Supreme Court decisions in which judges have ruled that the provincial government cannot impose age and sentencing restrictions on the incarceration of young offenders.

In the first ruling, delivered Jan. 31, Mr. Justice G.L. Murray struck down Section 44 of the Corrections Act, which states that a juvenile may only be sent to a containment centre if he is at least 14 years old, and considered unsuitable for diversion programs run by the human resources ministry, or has committed an offence that would have led to a penitentiary term had he been an adult.

The second judgment upheld that position, with the result that B.C.'s four juvenile detention centres — Willingdon in Burnaby, Victoria, Chilliwack and Campbell River — now can have prisoners who are seven to 21 years old.

The attorney-general's ministry is appealing the cases but, pending their outcome, overcrowding in the juvenile jails — already acute — has become more critical, corrections officials say.

City lawyer made judge

Victoria lawyer Robert William Metzger has been appointed a provincial court judge, the attorney-general's ministry announced Monday.

Metzger, a University of B.C. graduate who was called to the bar in 1974, will assume his duties next Monday.

'No wonder there's rental shortage'

By AB KENT

Six months ago a 29-year-old Victoria welder with a family of two children became a landlord by purchasing a duplex.

Today, defeated by what he calls rentalsman bureaucracy, he's no longer a landlord.

But Dennis P. — he asked not to be identified because he'll get crank calls — says he has a new respect for owners of rental property in a city with zero vacancy rate.

"I just want my story to be known to counteract some of the conventional lore of oppressiveness, the tales of illegal rent increases and rent-gouging by landlords," he said.

All he wanted in the first place was a rental property that would pay for itself, look after the mortgage and taxes, nothing else.

"I didn't want to make money on it," he said, adding he was content to let the investment ride until his children were older.

But he found all he could do by hanging on to the duplex was lose money.

The rentalsman's office would not allow him to raise the rent enough to even cover his expenses.

"I was forced to sell it, and because I felt compelled to tell the buyer about the hassle I'd been having, there was no way he could rent it either. So he's changing it back to a single family dwelling.

"Two reasonable rental units are lost from the Victoria market — forever.

"Ironically, the rental board was set up originally to protect the renter."

Dennis said he got a fantastic deal on the unit when he bought late last year.

It was within his means if he could raise the rents from what he called unrealistically low levels to cover his mortgage payments.

One side of the unit was a bachelor suite, completely self-contained with appliances, rented for $150 a month.

For the previous owner that was enough because he had clear title and no mortgage payments.

The other side, although larger, was even lower — $125 for one bedroom with garage — for a total income of $275 a month.

Dennis said he felt the larger unit could be rented fairly for $235 a month in view of current prices for equivalent properties of similar age.

But the tenant refused his request for voluntary acceptance of an increase exceeding seven per cent, the maximum rise allowable in a single year.

And the rentalsman's office refused three additional requests, the final refusal brought down by the provincial rental review commission in Vancouver.

The reason?

According to Dennis, they rejected his claim that mortgage payments are an expense and pointed out he should have known he could not cover instalment payments on such low rents.

One way he could have raised rents legally beyond seven per cent would have been to make improvements to the property equal to at least three times the monthly rental value.

At $150 a month he would have been able to spend $450, which he would be entitled to recover at one per cent a month, pushing the rent up to $154.50.

In 8.3 years he would get his $450 back.

But the same amount of money left in the bank at 12 per cent would have increased to $1,158.68 in 8.3 years, a difference of $708.68.

"No wonder there's a rental shortage," he said.

UNBOUNDED ENTHUSIASM was undoubtedly the secret ingredient in the George Pearkes school campaign to raise money for Timmy's Camp Shawnigan Telethon. While fellow students cheer, Darcy Kemp and Brodie Dronzek receive a plaque from Pam Anderson of the B.C. Lions Society for Crippled Children signifying that the sum of $219.25 collected by the clinic school's 32 students was more per capita than any other elementary school. A special note for Timmy fans: if you haven't spotted him yet, this year's Timmy, Jodi Rice, is just behind Anderson.

Bennett stops the game while he's away

The legislature will not sit on Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday next week.

Government house leader Garde Gardom announced Monday the special recess will be called to permit Premier Bill Bennett to take the normal escort of cabinet ministers to the three-day Western Premiers' Conference in Lethbridge.

The house will adjourn this Friday and reconvene on Thursday, April 24.

At present, with Speaker Harvey Schroeder on the sick list, the government is operating in the legislature with a working majority of three.

The decision to call the special recess is clear acknowledgement of the narrow line which the government must tread to avoid the embarrassment of losing a vote in the house.

Gardom was asked whether the legislature may go back to night sittings to make up for the lost time.

"Night sittings are always a possibility," he replied.

Bennett denied the government was suspending the people's business.

"We are travelling on the people's business," he said.

The premier is expected to take five ministers with him to Lethbridge: Finance Minister Hugh Curtis, Industry Minister Don Phillips, Lands Minister Jim Chabot, Energy Minister Bob McClelland and Gardom, minister of intergovernmental relations.

A morass of law, tradition in question of privilege

By JAKE BANKY

A special legislative committee on privilege discovered Monday just how tricky a course it must steer while exploring the uncharted issue of MLAs being subject to police wiretaps.

The committee was established at the request of Consumer Affairs Minister Jim Nielsen who wants to know if his MLA's privilege were breached when RCMP bugged his home and offices for more than a year.

The bugging was part of an attempted bribery case which eventually led to two convictions in Richmond, Nielsen's riding.

The minister himself was not implicated in any way.

Special counsel to the committee, George McMinn, said the law of legislative privilege is highly complex.

Some of it is written down but some has never been codified and exists only as an ever-changing body of tradition.

The conflict between privilege and wiretapping has arisen on two occasions in Ottawa but in neither case was a decision rendered, McMinn said.

He also advised committee members they do not have the power to demand access to the original affidavit filed by the police in support of their request to intercept Nielsen's communications.

That information remains sealed by the judge who authorized the wiretap.

Some members felt it was vital to acquire this information.

"That's the guts of it," said Labor Minister Jack Heinrich, who wanted to know what criteria are applied by police and by the judge.

But Energy Minister Bob McClelland, supported by Prince Rupert NDP MLA Graham Lea, argued it is unnecessary to get into the specifics of the Nielsen case.

McClelland urged the committee to resist the temptation to delve into the sustem of police wiretaps.

Lea agreed.

"We are not here to examine the system. We are here to examine whether the system should be applied to elected representatives."

He added, however, that he would very much like to see another committee set up to deal with the question of police wiretaps.

All members agreed the real question before the committee is not whether an MLA's communications had been intercepted but whether the public had been prevented from freely communicating with an elected representative.

"If privilege exists, it exists ultimately for the protection of the public," Lea observed.

The clerk of the house, Ian Horne, will report to the next committee meeting on the intricacies of parliamentary privilege and how they affect the issue at hand.

Other experts in the field may also be invited to testify, including one or two noted authorities from England.

Why did McGeer claim no fusion?

Victoria NDP MLA Gordon Hanson wants to know why Science Minister Pat McGeer denied in the legislature Monday that the Science Council of B.C. is involved in the possible placement of a nuclear fusion reactor in B.C.

Officials at the Science Council confirm that engineering consultants have been hired to do a feasibility study for placement of a medium-sized fusion reactor in this province, Hanson said.

A report is expected to be on the minister's desk within a month.

"The science council is under McGeer's authority so it's very strange that he doesn't know anything about it," Hanson said.

An international consortium has proposed establishing such an experimental reactor.

B.C. and Quebec are in the running as possible sites. McGeer has spoken publicly in favor of the project in the past.

Canadian next?

Agriculture Minister Jim Hewitt — the minister responsible for the Insurance Corp. of B.C. — would prefer to see a Canadian replace Robbie Sherrell as ICBC president and chief executive officer.

Hiring Sherrell, an American, to fill the $80,000-a-year job caused considerable controversy two years ago.

Sherrell was earning $86,400 a year.

Hewitt said if the new ICBC chief has the same high qualifications as Sherrell, then the salary will remain in that general neighbourhood.

"Our strategy in replacing Mr. Sherrell is to look at the management of ICBC. Is there an opportunity to promote from within?"

Failing that, Hewitt said, the government will search for a replacement first within B.C. and then across Canada.

"As a last alternative we would go international," he said.

Sherrell said he is resigning for personal reasons and plans to return to his home in Oklahoma to spend time with his family before looking for a new job.

His resignation is effective May 31.

Sunday buck passing denied by Williams

WILLIAMS
. . . flexibility needed

Attorney-General Allan Williams Monday denied he was passing the buck to the municipalities on the issue of Sunday openings.

The Holiday Shopping Act, introduced last week, put the responsibility for regulating Sunday openings squarely on the municipalities and has provoked considerable criticism.

Williams defended his decision not to apply a uniform regulation for Sunday openings across the province.

"What you'd gain in uniformity you would lose in flexibility which is required to meet the needs and desires of individual communities in this province.

"It certainly cannot be dealt with at the provincial level where all we can do is either shut the province down or open it up."

For those who say the Sunday regulations should be applied on a regional basis, Williams has this argument:

"In the Greater Vancouver Regional District it would mean a municipality like Richmond, which favors Sunday shopping, might find itself controlled by other municipalities.

"We considered it very carefully and decided that a municipal basis was the best way of handling the matter. Then you aren't being dictated to by somebody else."

Addicts labelled 'patients'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Heroin addicts forced to take treatment under the challenged Heroin Treatment Act would go to the government centres as patients and not criminals, lawyer Boyd Ferris told the B.C. Court of Appeal Monday.

Ferris, appearing for the B.C. government, is appealing a 1979 decision by B.C. Supreme Court Chief Justice Allan McEachern in which he ruled the compulsory portion of B.C.'s heroin treatment act was invalid.

The chief justice had held that part of the act was criminal law in nature and only the federal government can create criminal law.

Five appeal court judges are hearing the appeal.

Under the act, persons who are thought to be heroin addicts in need of treatment can be required to go to the treatment centre for an assessment by a panel of doctors and other professionals.

If the panel decides treatment is needed, the issue is taken into court for a judge to decide. Under the act, the judge can order an addict into detention at the treatment centre for up to six months and can order him to take treatment for up to three years.

The compulsory aspect of the act was never put into effect because it was challenged soon after the act was passed.

However, the voluntary portion — by which addicts could go to a treatment centre of their own volition — was not affected.

Chief Justice McEachern held that the compulsory features of the act put that portion of the act into the area of narcotics control — a field reserved exclusively for the federal government.

On Monday, Ferris contended that what the B.C. legislature passed was health legislation and was not an attempt to interfere in criminal law.

The appeal continues.

Barber tries to open up Capital Commission

A private member's bill which would require the Provincial Capital Commission to hold all its meetings in public was introduced in the legislature today by Victoria NDP MLA Charles Barber.

The commission has come under heavy criticism recently for its practice of meeting behind closed doors.

Under the proposed amendments to the Capital Commission Act, the commission would be required to open its meetings to the public, first advertising the agenda one week in advance, and then publish all the minutes.

The only exception would be meetings dealing with sensitive information such as property acquisition or matters dealing with individual personnel.

Barber also wants the commission to hold at least one public meeting a year at which residents would be able to ask questions of the commissioners.

His legislation as well would require the commission to publish an annual report and detailed financial accounts. It would also be required to put out to tender any contract worth more than $5,000.

Barber, once a member of the commission, said: "These amendments will strengthen the ability of the Commission to earn the respect and support of every citizen.

"I am confident they will welcome this opportunity to do their business openly and accountably."

However, almost all private members' bills die on the order paper without being debated.

Celibacy wrong, Pope told

ROME (UPI) — Banned Catholic theologian Hans Kung told Pope John Paul II in a bold letter printed today that the church is riddled with hypocrisy and its future will be grim if priests are not allowed to marry.

Kung sent the letter to John Paul a year ago and the Milan daily Corriere Della Sera printed it today.

The Vatican said it had no comment on the letter.

"What good arises from all the church's interventions in favor of human rights in the world if in the church itself these rights are not fully respected," the letter said.

"What good does it do to talk about the conscience of man today if at the same time the church and its hierarchy do not have a self-criticism of conscience," Kung wrote.

"What good does it serve to talk so much about the radical change of human society if there does not follow a reform of the church from its leader on down."

Kung, a Swiss teacher of theology at West Germany's Tubingen University, was stripped of his post as an official Catholic thologian by the Vatican Dec. 15 for what it called excessively liberal writings and defiance of doctrinal authority.

In passing judgment on Kung, whose books have been among the most widely read theological works in recent years, the Vatican said his teachings questioned the divinity of Christ and papal infallibility.

In asking that the Pope consider altering the church's stand on priestly celibacy, Kung said the gospel did not say priests should not marry and pointed out that the apostles themselves had wives.

"Both Christ and St. Paul explicitly guarantee the full liberty of every single individual," Kung wrote. "How many more priests do we have to lose before we recognize the legitimacy of marriage, a field in which other churches have had good experiences?

"Tens of thousands of parishes are already vacant and their number is destined to grow day by day," Kung wrote.

"I would like to relay in all frankness, the desire of many Catholics, clergy and laymen, men and women: recall to the priesthood those who were forced to abandon (their vocation) only because of the celibacy law," he said.

"Eliminate this obstacle to the reunification of the Christian churches," Kung asked the Pope.

Germany, Japan lean to boycott

Times News Services

West Germany and Japan, two allies whose support is considered vital to President Carter's drive for an international boycott of the Moscow Summer Olympics, appear ready to lend support following the U.S. Olympic Committee's (USOC) vote in favor of a boycott.

Chief governmental spokesman Klaus Boelling said Monday West Germany will recommend that the country's National Olympic Committee vote to boycott the Games if Soviet troops remain in Afghanistan.

The German committee will meet May 15 in Dusseldorf to decide whether to send a team to Moscow. Although the government decision is not binding, Willi Daume, a West German member of the International Olympic Committee (IOC), said it "certainly has weight."

West Germany's decision is expected to influence other Western European countries.

Japanese Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira is scheduled to visit Washington later this month and it now looks certain he'll have a pro-boycott decision in his briefcase.

Foreign Minister Saburo Okita, answering questions today in the Japanese parliament, said it would be "undesirable" for Japanese athletes to take part in the games this summer unless the Soviet Union withdraws its troops from Afghanistan.

He said that applied both to the Japan Olympic Committee and to individual athletes who might want to go on their own.

The comment was interpreted as removing any doubts about the government's position and was regarded as strong enough virtually to assure that Japan's teams would not attend.

Meanwhile, Swedish Foreign Minister Ola Ullsten said in Toyko today that his country intends to participate in Games.

The final decision will be up to the Swedish Olympic Committee, Ullsten said.

Among countries considered important to an international boycott movement, Canada is expected to make its official views known before the end of April, although the closing date to accept invitations is mid-May.

The government of New Zealand is against it and the British government has supported the boycott. But, the British Olympic Association has said it will send a team to Moscow.

However, the British Royal Yachting Association announced today it will not send a team to the Olympic Games in Moscow.

The yachtsmen joined the British equestrian and field hockey associations in going against the policy of the British Olympic Association.

Meanwhile, sources at NBC say the broadcast network will not televise the Moscow Games. But an official announcement is expected to be delayed until lawyers are certain the network can recover its insurance commitment and about $57 million, or 90 per cent of NBC's payment to the Soviet Olympic Organizing Committee and the IOC.

Industry sources said NBC had anticipated a profit on the Olympics of about $30 million.

The network has 45 tons of equipment in Moscow, scheduled for return to the United States.

Also, the USOC's boycott vote apparently has placed the status of the 1984 Summer Olympics, scheduled for Los Angeles, in question.

Prince Alexander de Merode, a member of the Belgian Olympic Committee, said Monday he favored moving the Games from Los Angeles, fearing a retaliatory boycott by Eastern European countries.

Begin stance more flexible?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, heading into new summit talks today with President Carter, says he will try to speed negotiations on autonomy for Palestinian Arabs.

But he seems to be giving no ground on the kind of council Palestinians living in Israeli-occupied territory can elect.

Concerned that a powerful Palestinian council might lead to a Palestinian state, Begin takes the view that the Camp David agreement of September, 1978, calls for giving the Palestinians no more than some municipal controls.

By contrast, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, who met with Carter last week, wants the Palestinians to have legislative and executive powers.

Despite his differences with the Egyptian leader, Begin's offer to accelerate the slow-moving autonomy negotiations and to extend the May 26 target date for a settlement may hint at Israeli flexibility.

Meanwhile, five hardline Arab leaders, ending a three-day summit meeting in Libya, today announced the creation of a joint military force to be stationed in Syria.

The leaders, representing Syria, Algeria, South Yemen, Libya and the Palestine Liberation Organization, said details of the proposed joint military force would be worked out in the next six months.

Conference sources said the front was aiming at the creation of an alliance with the Kremlin opposed to the Camp David peace accords.

This drug is kosher!

REHOVOTH, Israel (UPI) — Science has found a use for the foreskins from 8-day-old circumcised males — cell tissue needed for producing interferon, an experimental drug that may prove useful in combatting cancer, a spokesman for the Weizman Institue of Science said Tuesday:

The institute plans to mass produce the suspected anti-viral agent from the foreskins at a $1 million pilot plant that is to go into operation June 1, the spokesman said.

S. Africans barred

JOHANNESBURG (Reuter) — The Soviet Union has barred South Africans from going to watch the Summer Olympics in Moscow, a travel agency said.

USW signs three-year contract

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The United Steelworkers union (USW) today approved a new three-year contract that will provide basic steel workers an average $3-an-hour hike in wages and fringe benefits.

The package, covering 450,000 USW members at nine steel companies and estimated at a total of more than $5 billion, was approved 333-42 by representatives of USW locals.

The pact, to take effect Aug. 1, calls for more than 40 per cent in total economic increases — including cost-of-living adjustments.

Liddy finally tells 'plumbers' tale

NEW YORK (AP) — After a long silence, G. Gordon Liddy, the convicted conspirator who allegedly masterminded the 1972 Watergate break-in, has made public details of his role in scandal — including fears of being killed for failing to carry out the burglary.

In the book, excerpted in this week's Time magazine, Liddy says he believed he was going to be killed on orders from the White House for failure to break-in at the Democratic national committee headquarters in Washington.

The book also alleges Liddy was planning to kill newspaper columnist Jack Anderson because Anderson had published information which implicated a U.S. agent abroad.

But the plan was vetoed by Howard Hunt, Liddy's superior in the special White House political sabotage unit.

Liddy says an idea to drop LSD into Daniel Ellsberg's soup at a dinner party was foiled when White House aide Charles Colson delayed in approving the plan. The idea was to discredit the former Pentagon guerrilla war specialist who leaked classified documents on Vietnam.

Liddy, the son of a Manhattan lawyer and a Fordham Law School graduate, became an FBI agent, then quit to join his father's firm. After he campaigned for Richard Nixon in 1968 he was given a job in the treasury department where he was recruited for service with the "plumbers," so called because they were supposed to plug news leaks.

Liddy, who refused to plea bargain with prosecutors, served 52 months in jail, longer than any of the other 25 conspirators.

Liddy says that when he suspected prisoners were going to kill him, he armed himself with the guards' permission before turning in for the night.

"I lay down fully dressed except for shoes, and arranged the covers over me. In my right hand, lying alongside the right side of my body under the blanket, was the big axe handle. I could sweep that handle out in a second and knock two men off their feet by striking directly at their knees. In my left hand was the knife, and the pipe under my pillow. I was ready."

He wrote:

"The attack never materialized. No one wanted to be the first to die. They were afraid, never having learned what I taught myself as a boy: defeat the fear of death and welcome the death of fear."

Liddy was known as the "Sphinx" because of his refusal to talk or testify about his role on the White House "plumbers" squad, but said he now felt "a debt of history" to tell his story.

Doe keeps close rein on troops

MONROVIA, Liberia (UPI) — The government of Master Sgt. Samuel K. Doe, which came to power in a weekend coup, clamped down today on unruly bands of troops, ordering them back to barracks and warning they would be executed if they harassed the public.

Monrovia Radio broadcast an appeal for Adolphus Tolbert, son of President William Tolbert who was killed in Saturday's coup, to surrender and asked stores that have been closed since the overthrow to open for business.

The radio said any soldiers without orders to be on the streets should return to their barracks and warned that any troops found harassing citizens would put to death.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said Monday the U.S. government was reviewing the situation in Liberia and expressed the hope that Doe's regime would "avoid the policies of retribution and revenge."

In an mixed response to the U.S. call to not seek revenge, Doe's four-day-old regime postponed a series of treason show trials but arrested 15 more of Tolbert's top officials.

The new wave of arrests Monday also came amid continued reports several members of Tolbert's family had been taken into custody by the new government.

Doe's government Monday arrested another 15 officials and prominent industrialists associated with Tolbert, including the former director of the special security service, officials of the national airline, two former ministers and the deputy managing director of the Liberia Broadcasting Corp, identified as Jonathan Russell, Monrovia Radio reported.

M-19 rebels try another snatch

BOGOTA (AP) — Colombian guerrillas claiming to be from the organization holding the 20 hostages at the embassy of the Dominican Republic briefly entered the Uruguayan embassy in an apparent attempt to kidnap the charge d'affaires.

The three or four masked persons who invaded the Uruguayan embassy Monday said they belong to Movement 19, the same organization that took over the Dominican embassy on Feb. 27. Police sources said the intruders left without making trouble when they could not find Charge d'Affaires Raul Lira, who was not in the building.

It was believed the guerrillas wanted to kidnap Lira because Uruguyan ambassador Fernando Gomez Fyns escaped from the M-19 band at the Dominican embassy.

Government and guerrilla representatives met twice Monday as the pace appeared to quicken in the negotiations for the release of 18 other diplomats and two Colombians who today began their 49th day as hostages in the Dominican embassy. It was the first time the negotiators had met twice in one day.

Meanwhile, bowing to pressure from the military, President Lidia Gueiler on Monday named a conservative general to head the Bolivian army, replacing a moderate who had supported her government.

The shakeup renewed fears of a military takeover or domination of the June 29 presidential vote.

They were ready for this assailant

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A would-be purse snatcher picked on the wrong group of women and was pummeled, chased and finally captured.

Police said four women had been to a city Police Commission meeting night at which they won approval of the "Women Take Back the Night Rally," a march through Hollywood April 19.

The march is to protest violence against women, including purse snatchings.

One of the women was attacked as the four left a restaurant following the meeting and the other three jumped the assailant.

"I can't remember his exact words," one of the women said, "but it was something like, 'I can't believe it! What are you doing?' " He then pulled a knife but another victim whacked him on the head with her purse.

The suspect fled but the women chased him on foot and in their car for five blocks before police intercepted and arrested him.

Leonard Jordan, 25, was booked on suspicion of robbery.

Aussie disc pirate sold to Canadians

PERTH (Reuter) — Australian police have smashed a multi-million-dollar illegal recording operation which sold "pirate" records to 15 countries, including Canada, a court was told.

Performances or broadcasts of groups like the Rolling Stones, Fleetwood Mac or Pink Floyd were recorded in the United States and records made from the tapes at a factory in Perth, the court heard.

Charles O'Halloran, 28, pleaded guilty through his counsel to 59 counts of selling recordings in breach of the copyright act.

The mail order operation, known as Toal Hall's Rare Records, sent records to customers in the U.S. Britain, Sweden, Japan, France, the Netherlands, Canada, Italy, Belgium, New Zealand, Norway, West Germany and others.

Mailer scores on critics

NEW YORK (AP) — Norman Mailer had the last laugh Monday. The controversial author's novelized account of the crime and punishment of Utah killer Gary Gilmore, The Executioner's Song, won the 1980 Pulitzer Prize for fiction.

Mailer has been criticized in some quarters for putting the label of fiction on what is essentially the true story of Gary Gilmore.

"I've never worried about that," he said. "My feeling when I finished the book was that it read like a novel. I thought if it was put on the non-fiction list, a lot of people wouldn't go near it."

One of the journalism awards went to Ellen Goodman of the Boston Globe, whose syndicated column has been running Saturdays on page 5 of the Times.

Opening lead — four of spades.

In the ordinary course of events, you seldom get a chance to do anything brilliant during the play. The correct procedure is usually self-evident, and all you have to do to get good results is to do what comes naturally.

But there are occasions when you must do something outstanding to accomplish your goal. Unfortunately, there's no guardian angel to tell you that this is the time to rise and shine; you have to discover the blockbusting play all by yourself.

Here is a case where East had to make a spectacular move to defeat the contract. West led a spade and East cashed the A-Q, after which he had to decide what to play next.

After considering the matter carefully, East played the only card in his hand that could defeat the contract. He led the king of hearts! As a direct result of this play, South went down four after attempting a diamond finesse.

From East's viewpoint, the king of hearts was clearly the right play. He had to credit West with the queen of hearts or ace of clubs. If declarer had both of them, there was virtually no chance of stopping the contract.

Very little harm could come from leading the king of hearts, even if it turned out that South had the queen. In that case, East would still have time to try to find his partner with the ace of clubs when he got on lead with the queen of diamonds.

A club return at trick three, or a low heart return, would have given declarer all the time he needed to establish dummy's diamonds and make the contract. But the king of hearts return, though daring and unusual, was far more likely to do declarer in.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Wednesday, April 16, 1980
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Money, extravagance, increased social activity, publishing aspirations — these co-mingle. Be flexible, give full rein to intellectual curiosity. You succeed on "third try." Gemini, Sagittarius persons figure prominently. Good news is on the way!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Break free from foolish restrictions. Cycle high—demand quality, aim for security. Make personal appearance, emphasize personality, brighter colors, confidence. Scorpio, Aquarius persons command attention. A special agreement or contract is "in the works."

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Ideas bear fruit — what begins with "mild interest" is transformed into viable concept—and possible profitable project. Another Gemini, a Virgo and Sagittarian play key roles. Creative capabilities come "astonishingly" to forefront.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Money is "released"—cash flow resumes. Accent on business procedures, security, investments, fulfillment of desires, romantic illusions. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio and the number 6 figure prominently. One in position of authority is willing to make room for you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Define terms, get rid of preconceived notions, steer clear of self-deception. Accent on special assignment, prestige, willingness to fulfill obligations. Pisces, Virgo persons figure prominently. Honor and reputation are enhanced.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Bring long-range priorities, projects, assignments into focus. Avoid direct confrontations. Plan ahead, submit plans, manuscripts. Get outline on paper, clarify format. Cancer, Capricorn persons play major roles.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You are aided by one you helped in past. Money, borrowing, interest rates, financial prospects of partner or mate — these figure prominently. Fiscal mystery unravels. You gain insights, but not the "easy" way.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): New approach indicated in connection with contracts, public relations, partnership and marital situation. Leo, Aquarius persons figure prominently. You get "rare opportunity" to wipe slate clean, to begin anew, to imprint style.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Collect data—be analytical, build for durability and security. Follow through on hunch. You will regain sense of direction. Cancer, Leo, Aquarius persons figure prominently. You will rise above petty details, red tape.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Intrigue, behind scenes operations, romantic interlude — these command spotlight of your personal scenario. Gemini, Sagittarius individuals figure prominently. Imprint style, display versatility, accept social invitation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Adhere to facts, dig deep for information, persist in quest for "true picture." Accent on home, basic issues, security, the close of a transaction. Be aware of small print, detail, views of older family member.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Give full play to intellectual curiosity. Perceive reasons for recent happenings, events. Emphasis on trips, messages, letter which contains travel data, money exchange information and news of relative in transit.

IF APRIL 16 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are a combination of introspection and aggressiveness. It is not easy for others to know the "real you" — at times, even you search for elusive qualities which would define your character. You often are "accused" of being psychic. You sense when something of importance is about to occur. You are better at helping others than when it comes to aiding yourself. Pisces, Virgo persons play important roles in your life. June will be your most memorable month of 1980. In July, you will be rid of an unnecessary burden.

Orderly 16,000 view The Who

VANCOUVER (CP) — A local radio station was talking about "Who jitters."

But The Who, one of the last reigning British rock super groups, blasted out a two-hour concert to an appreciative, well-behaved crowd of 16,000 screaming fans who crammed into the Pacific Coliseum Monday night.

Famous for their on-stage pyrotechnics and smashing sprees, The Who's first leg of this North American tour was marred when 11 youngsters were killed in a mad stampede at the Riverside Coliseum in Cincinnati Dec. 3.

But tight security here kept the few crazies in check and a brilliantly-organized ticket lottery for a Vancouver rock bash resulted in a tidal wave of 800,000 letters rather than a crushing mob of gate-crashers.

It was The Who's first appearance in Vancouver in 12 years, an oversight lead guitarist Peter Townshend attempted to mollify with his opening remark: "We won't leave you alone again."

One of the last British rock "invasion" groups to survive the 1970s relatively intact, The Who blasted out their trademark brand of musical cynicism which typified the mid-1960s mod-rocker culture that spawned them.

Townshend, lead singer Roger Daltrey and bassist John Entwistle form the core of the group. Former Faces drummer Kenny Jones replaced the Who's original drummer, Keith Moon, a wildly unpredictable, hotel-room trashing eccentric who died of a sedative overdose in September, 1978 at age 32.

John (Rabbit) Bundrick on keyboard gave an added dimension, especially during Music Must Change and the throbbing Underture from the group's rock opera Tommy.

The 34-year-old Daltrey, his hair cropped punker-close and wearing a soon-to-be-discarded black leather jacket, white T-shirt and jeans, strutted around the stage, his compact, athletic form a curious counterpoint to Townshend, 36, a gangly figure, famous for his guitar-smashing outbursts and windmill strumming.

But there was no guitar-smashing as the sweat-drenched Townshend, Daltrey and Jones, watched by the quietly bemused Entwistle, 35, pumped out more than 20 numbers.

Coliseum manager Mario Caravetta was pleased with the concert and said the new fully-reserved seating policy for all rock concerts, which came into effect Dec. 1, will remain.

No fatalities

TOKYO (Reuter) — Japan's 200-kilometre-an-hour Bullet trains have carried 1.5 billion passengers without a fatal accident since the service was inaugurated in October, 1964, the National Railways Corp. said. The number of daily passengers, however, has dropped to 350,000 from a peak of 600,000 at the time of 1970 Osaka World Fair.

Daily air service up-island planned

By AL FORREST

Airwest Airlines is planning regular daily air service up-Island from Victoria to Port Hardy as soon as Ottawa approves the proposal, the company announced Monday.

Land-based planes would fly to Nanaimo, Comox, Port Alberni, and Campbell River as well as northern Vancouver Island, president Rusty Harris said.

Eventually the service would be extended to Sandspit in the Queen Charlotte Islands.

Harris unveiled the proposal after an Airwest directors meeting here.

Among those in attendance were Jim Pattison, president of the Jim Pattison Group, which owns Airwest, and Mel Cooper, the only Victoria director in the company.

Harris said the new regular service would be in operation within 18 months if approval is received from the air transport committee.

The company already operates a land-based service between Cassidy Airport near Nanaimo and Vancouver.

Meanwhile, Airwest will be promoting its float plane service, especially on the triangle run from Seattle, Victoria and Vancouver.

"We already have 46 per cent of the air traffic between Victoria and Vancouver," Harris said.

Seattle is also a prime market because of the large population there.

Flying time from Lake Union (Seattle) is only 35 minutes to Victoria, 55 minutes to Vancouver.

A massive billboard campaign is under way in Seattle now to promote the Seattle-Victoria flight.

Meanwhile, Airwest's application for an airbus service between Victoria and Vancouver has been stalled in Ottawa.

Amity season ends on fine note

By AUDREY JOHNSON

Guest conducted by Ottawa's Brian Law and assisted by the Western Brass Quintet, Amity Singers closed its season over the weekend with a memorable concert.

The quality of the singing and playing, and the general excellence in shaping the program should make Amity's 1980-81 season an irresistible choice for music lovers.

Included with the program was announcement of appointment of a new music director for 1980-81. Stepping into Jon Washburn's place will be dynamic Bruce Pullen, director of the Vancouver Bach Choir and a past tenor soloist with Amity Singers. Pullen guest-conducted the choir last fall at the Empress Hotel.

Law, who was one of last year's Victoria Symphony guest conductors, is assistant conductor of the National Arts Centre Orchestra. His excellence in choral work was obvious from first to last of the Amity concert. Immaculate detail and imaginative handling of color characterized his work at all times. Rhythmic precision and skillful phrasing that follows the poetic line with acute sensitivity, create an effect that is as clear and shapely as it is interpretively sound.

The opening Contrapunctus No. 1 by J.S. Bach and the Centone No. 4 by Elfonso Ferrabosco, were finely tuned and phrased and remarkable for clarity of diction.

Combining with the brass, a performance of Purcell's Music for the Funeral of Queen Mary, proved a highlight of the evening. The interspersing of brass and choir was beautifully executed and a fine atmosphere combining dignity with mourning and an exalted spirituality was created.

There was also a pleasing blend of brass and choral tone in the joyful rhythmic music of Schutz's Two Motets.

Least successful offering was the Derek Holman Weatherscapes. This evocative suite of Canadian impressions is a difficult work not well suited to brass writing combined with choral. It resulted in serious problems of balance causing an overpowering of the choir.

Amity countered this by using amplification which helped with the general balance. However this was less than successful as the lovely quality of the choir's tone was destroyed.

The Western Brass on its own with Three Tudor Anthems by William Byrd and Thomas Weelkes, was quite splendid, the tone pure and rich and the sense of style faultless. An occasional blending problem did nothing to mar a fine performance.

A neat ending to the program was achieved with Howard Cable's arrangment of three French Canadian folk songs. These were in a sense "encore" pieces but as performed by the brass they were most effective.

At the Christ Church Cathedral organ was Edward Norman.

Cool-Aid suggests group home

Cool-Aid has found an alternative way to help the elderly homeless men who turn up at the Fernwood hostel in need of medical treatment and a place to live.

In January, city council refused Cool-Aid the free use of a city-owned house at 1325 Pembroke and the society couldn't meet the city's $75,000 asking price.

Cool-Aid director Laurie Smith has asked the city to approve a proposal to rent the upper floor of the old Fernwood bakery at 1921 Fernwood, which is being renovated as a neighborhood arts and crafts building.

Space would be rented at $800 a month from the Fernwood Management Group, the local organization which is to manage the building and the new community centre at Stevenson Park on Gladstone.

Smith's proposal is for a group home for up to eight individuals referred to Cool-Aid by other social service agencies, such as the ministry of human resources.

Revenue would support arts and crafts programs on the main floor of the building. Both the management group and the Fernwood Community Association have approved the Cool-Aid's request but it also requires city council's approval.

Camosun parking extended

Oak Bay council voted Monday night to approve development of an extra 161 car parking spaces at Camosun College.

The site will be just north of an existing parking lot on Foul Bay Road but a development permit will be needed which will set landscaping requirements and determine access points.

Several residents spoke against the move but two students and two college representatives said the extra parking is needed.

Mayor Doug Watts said existing public transit is not a satisfactory option and the impact of college parking on neighboring residential streets was heavy and inconvenient.

The parking will not have a heavy impact on trees, he said, and represented a good balance between getting cars off the street and maintaining the present landscape.

But Watts warned that the new parking is as much as Oak Bay will allow to have access via Foul Bay Road without Saanich playing its part on the other side of the property.

College council chairman Janet Baird said the intention is to issue permits for parking at the same time fees are paid.

SANDS — SIDNEY

The Lord is my Shepherd

I shall not want

He maketh me to lie down in green pastures

He restoreth my soul

He leadeth me in the path of righteousness for his name sake

Yea though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death

I will fear no evil

For thou art with me, thy rod and thy staff
they comfort me

before me in the
enemies

Thou anointest my head with oil

My cup runneth over

Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life and I will dwell in the House of the Lord forever.

These old favorites worth cultivating

There are many shrubs, once popular among local gardeners, that are not well known to newcomers.

One is Tamarisk, the common name of the Tamarix, of which some species abound along the River Tamaris in Spain.

The Tamarisks are native to Europe and Asia, and of the entire family there are a few species which do well here.

Describing the Tamarisk is easy for the botanist with Greek and Latin terms which have only one meaning and cannot be misconstrued. To describe it in English is another matter, especially when gestures of the hands cannot be added.

The species commonly seen growing in this area is spring flowering and its buds are in color now. It will soon attract attention with its misty pink appearance. Many gardeners have seen it or grow it, but only a few know its name.

It is an unusual shrub of bare reddish stems in winter, taking on a pink haze as the flowers open, and a little later producing its fine, needle-like foliage similar to the heathers.

This early Tamarix is T. parviflora (small flowered), growing to a height of 4.5 metres in time, but should be pruned back about one-third each year after flowering to prevent it becoming gaunt and ungainly.

Less often seen are the late summer flowering species, two of which are T. pentandra (five stamens) and T. tetrandra (four stamens), both with flowers in large panicles.

The third summer flowering species is T. Odessana (from Odessa) a smaller shrub with a more upright habit than the others and a midsummer flowering period.

The tamarisks are plants that grow by the sea. In some parts of Europe they are the standard windbreak for seaside gardens, possibly available at reasonable quantity prices for this purpose. Here they are more often seen as garden specimens.

All need regular pruning to improve the flower display and general appearance.

Some of the evergreen Osmanthus are so much like the holly that it takes an experienced plantsman to tell them apart.

In either the green or varigated form they found their way into most of the older gardens. Osmanthus aquifolium (holly-like leaf) was possibly the most common.

Quite distinct and more pleasing in appearance is Osmanthus delavayi from China, usually seen at heights of 120 cms to 200 cms, with small stiff lustrous leaves and clusters of pure white flowers in April.

The Phillyreas were another old-time favourite, of which P. decora from the Black Sea region is much superior to those from southern Europe.

A wide spreading shrub with large leaves, it also has small white flowers, this time clustered in the axils.

From these two shrubs we have the bigeneris hybrid called Osmaria, evergreen, with small dark green shiny leaves and very fragrant white flowers which start in late March and continue for most of April.

It is quite hardy here, requires but ordinary garden soil, and will tolerate both open and partially shaded positions.

The full name is Osmaria burkwoodi, originated in England. While it will reach from 180 to 300 cms in height, it has been found good for clipped hedges, indicating it is ameanable to being kept within bounds. Clipping, if needed, is done in May after the flowers fade.

Kramer sweeps five Oscars

HOFFMAN
. . . best actor

FIELD
. . . best actress

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Kramer vs. Kramer — an unflinching film of a man, a woman and their small son rebuilding a web of love broken by divorce — swept the Academy Awards Monday night, taking five Oscars including best picture of 1979, best actor for Dustin Hoffman and best supporting actress for Meryl Streep.

Sally Field won the best actress award for her portrayal of a spunky Southern mill worker, trying to mother her family and a struggling labor union, in Norma Rae.

Veteran performer Melvyn Douglas, 79, who made his first movie 49 years ago, won the supporting actor award for his performance as a dying presidential crony in Being There.

"Well, the soap opera won," commented Hoffman — winning for the first time, after four nominations going back to The Graduate in 1967.

He was honored for his portrayal of a loving father in Kramer, which also took the statuettes for best screenplay taken from another medium and best direction.

Miss Streep, a swiftly rising star, won for her portrait of an independent woman determined to both build a life outside of marriage and reclaim her small son.

"They said this couldn't be done," said Miss Field.

"I'm going to be the one to cry tonight," she said, with tears in her eyes.

Mickey Rooney, 60 — who has has been nominated four times but holds only a special juvenile Oscar awarded him in 1938 — leaned foward expectantly in his seat as the envelope was opened containing the winner in the best supporting actor category.

But when the award went to Douglas, he showed no trace of disappointment, smiling and clapping.

Robert Benton won the director's award for Kramer, and then followed up with a second Oscar for the film's script, as the best screenplay adapted from another medium.

Kramer, a box office smash, was the expected winner for best picture.

The chief competition came from All That Jazz, Bob Fosse's mordant open-heart musical based on his own flirtations with women and death, which came in second in the Oscar sweepstakes, with four awards — best adapted score, art direction, costume design and film editing..

Apocalypse Now — Francis Ford Coppola's lavish vision of the Vietnam War as a circus of death, drugs and rock 'n' roll — collected two, best sound and best cinematography to Vittorio Storaro.

Hoffman, saying he refused to believe he beat such stars as Jack Lemmon, Al Pacino and Peter Sellers, recalled the days when he was an unknown and had "to practice accents while driving a taxicab."

"It's incomparable," said Miss Streep, nominated last year for The Deer Hunter. "It's wonderful. I'm trying to hear above my heartbeat."

She thanked not only costar Hoffman and the producers for giving her the role but also co-star Jane Alexander, who was nominated in the same category for the same picture, "for the love and support."

Douglas was chosen over Justin Henry, who played the son in kramer. At age 8, Justin was the youngest performer ever nominated for a regular Oscar.

The best original song Oscar went to It Goes Like It Goes, from Norma Rae, by Norman Gimbel and David Shire.

The best original screenplay award went to Steve Tesich, who came to the United States as a teenager and drew on his youth in Bloomington, Ind., for Breaking Away, the tale of four non-college youths growing up in a university town.

The best foreign language film award went to West Germany's Tin Drum, from the novel by Gunter Grass.

Hoffman, his voice breaking, presented a special award to Sir Alec Guinness for Guinness' career advancing the art of screen acting, which drew a standing ovation frm the crowd.

Guinness became the only performer to be honored with such an award after winning an Oscar on his own. He strode on stage to the strains of the march from The Bridge on the River Kwai, for which he won the best actor award in 1957.

Guinness said he learned as a drama student 47 years ago that the best acting method was "to do absolutely nothing at all — and that, more or less, is what I've done since then."

The visual effects Oscar went to Alien, the story of a monstrous extraterrestial taking over a spaceship.

The best original score Oscar went to the music from A Little Romance, a puppy love tale of a young American girl and a French boy running away to a romantic bridge in Venice.

Best Boy was awarded the Oscar for feature length documentary, and Paul Robeson, Tribute to an Artist, won in the short category.

For the third year in a row, the National Film Board of Canada won the animated short Oscar, this year for Every Child. The live action short Oscar went to Board and Care.

Keep the Shine for Life . . .

with The Shine Factory Exterior Paint and Chrome Sealant.

NEVER WAX YOUR CAR AGAIN — GUARANTEED!

The Shine Factory system is a combination of carefully selected petroleum base products that are totally acceptable to all automotive paint exteriors and chrome. The Shine Factory sealer is applied over a specially formulated pre-cleaner that rejuvenates old or dull paint. This special process actually adds a protective coating into your vehicle's painted surface giving a long lasting glass hard finish. The Shine Factory process is NOT A WAX. In fact, waxing is the only thing that will cause the sealant to become dull. Pollutants and chemicals in the air break down the paint particles. The sun causes oxidation, chalking and discoloration. Salts and corrosives add to this deterioration. Conventional waxes actually collect dust and causes moisture streaking. All of this is avoided with our Shine Factory application. The super sleek, extra hard finish repels dust and chemical pollutants. It protects the finish against the elements and retains a showroom finish, It instills a special pride of ownership, while ensuring top re-sale and trade-in values.

Sex education changes urged by school trustee

A new set of sex education materials for Victoria schools has been proposed by trustee Dr. Mark Fisher.

Fisher said Monday that society has failed to tackle the problem of teenage pregnancy.

"We have come to expect our children to make a mature sexual decision. But they can't do that," he said at a meeting of the Greater Victoria school board.

Neither the board, provincial nor federal government has addressed the problem of what Fisher called a crisis in public health, not even considering the moral or religious aspects.

The children are immature, there is a poor attitude toward sexuality, venereal disease is increasing, contraception exposes girls to risk, abortions are permitted wholesale and a Vancouver lawyer is getting away with advertising to buy unborn babies.

At the same time controvery rages between the pro-abortionists and pro-life factions, Fisher said.

He said 90 per cent of the girls whose pregnancies go to term are keeping their babies, exposing them to the further risk of child abuse.

Politicians have not come to terms with the problem — at the federal level avoiding the issue and at the provincial level decrying abortion but not accepting sex education or support for pregnant girls."

He proposes an educational package for Grades 8-11, prepared with input from parents, and plans to deal with it at the next board meeting.

After school sports lauded

Competitive sports played after school hours won official recognition by Greater Victoria school trustees Monday.

Trustees agreed to include extra-curricular sports in their policy manual in response to a submission by Robin Hay, president of Lower Vancouver Senior Secondary Schools Athletic Association.

Hay said his organization represented about 110 people who volunteer some 16,000 hours a year to coach and manage 1,000 Greater Victoria School District students involved in extra-curricular athletics.

Even more are involved in the Sooke and Saanich school districts, he said, and asked that a committee be formed to discuss problems with the athletic association.

Trustees agreed this kind of athletics is part of the public school tradition, but some thought there should be greater attention paid first to curriculum sports, and that $20,000 a year is enough to devote to extra-curricular support.

That money is what District 61 allocates to uniforms and transportation expenses for team activities.

Hay pointed out that financial support was not of concern at this time.

On a similar subject — outdoor education provided by Strathcona Lodge on Buttle Lake — trustees approved a motion to write the education minister deploring a drop in provincial subsidy.

The lodge is operated on a non-profit basis offering courses to schools and the general public. Its subsidy from the education department has fallen to $50,000 from $140,000 in six years.

Trustee Win Mott said the social cost of eliminating programs like this, or making them available only to an elite, probably exceeds what the ministry saves by reducing support.

Esquimalt principal returns

Former Esquimalt High principal Court Brousson moves back to his old job next fall after three years as assistant superintendent of schools for field and pupil services in School District 61.

School board trustees approved his transfer Monday, along with the appointment of Keith Bickmore, principal of Esquimalt Senior Secondary, to principal of Oak Bay Senior Secondary.

Bickmore replaces D.G. Macdonald, who retires this year from Oak Bay.

Robert Mitchell becomes vice-principal at Oak Bay, having served at Cedar Hill Secondary, Dave Allen goes as vice-principal to Esquimalt from Spectrum, Sam Dumka goes to Spectrum from Oak Bay and Eric Orme moves to Cedar Hill from Esquimalt.

The district is advertising for a replacement for Brousson, to be known as assistant superintendent for field and support services.

Also sought are a director of instruction in support services and a director of instruction in staff development, a new position under assistant superintendent Glenn Wall.

Byelection set

A byelection will be held June 7 to fill the seat vacated on Sidney council by the resignation of Ald. Daryl Ashby.

The position will be available for the remainder of Ashby's term through 1981.

Nominations for the position close May 20 at 10 a.m.

'Breach of faith' by Saanich

By LORRAINE LOCHERTY

A Saanich decision to allow developers to almost double the size of Tillicum Shopping Centre came under heavy attack today from the Capital Region District and Victoria city council.

Angry Capital Region District directors are threatening court action while city aldermen say they will organize a protest campaign.

CRD chairman James Campbell and Colwood director Howard Drummond called removal of a restrictive covenant limiting the size of the shopping complex a show of bad faith.

Saanich will allow developers Cal Investments Ltd. to add 200,000 square feet to it development.

Victoria Mayor Bill Tindall said he was dumbfounded to hear Saanich has reversed its position.

A protest campaign among downtown Victoria businessmen and property owners will be organized by Ald. Ron McKenzie, Tindall said.

"It seems to me to be a total act of bad faith," Ald. Bob Wright, chairman of council's land use planning committee, said. "I find it extremely frustrating. It's a tragedy, it's just too bad."

Saanich Mayor Mel Couvelier, who voted against the proposal, said today he also considers the Tillicum expansion a breach of faith.

"We had an understanding at the CRD level and I was party to it. So in all conscience I couldn't revise my stand," Couvelier said.

But Couvelier said he doesn't care what Victoria thinks.

The same loophole in the regional plan that allowed city council to approve expansion of Mayfair shopping centre made it possible for Saanich to approve the Tillicum addition, he said.

"The city fouled their own nest with the Mayfair thing," Couvelier commented.

Council voted 5-4 to remove a restrictive covenant and allow Cal Investments to increase the size of the centre to 495,000 square feet, making it the largest on southern Vancouver Island.

The new plan includes an Eatons department store. Eatons also announced Monday a three-year, $4 million plan to renovate and expand to its downtown store.

Couvelier agreed that expanding the $30 million Tillicum centre will increase the municipal tax base.

"But at the same time I did feel I was part of negotiations with the CRD and didn't feel I could support the proposal for that reason."

Campbell said the restrictive covenant was one reason the regional board dropped a lawsuit against Saanich over the hotly-contested development.

"While it wasn't the entire reason for withdrawing legal action, it was a factor in some directors' minds," Campbell said in a phone interview.

The shopping centre will be built on a 30-acre site formerly occupied by the Tillicum Drive-In theatre. The centre includes Zellers, Simpson Sears and Safeway stores as well as a number of small specialty shops.

Construction should be completed by the fall of 1981.

Couvelier said he hopes the massive shopping centre won't have a negative impact on a regional shopping centre planned for Jacklin Road in Langford.

Ald. John Mika, Robert Cameron and Howard Sturrock also voted against the expansion.

Quebec votes May 20

QUEBEC (CP) — The referendum asking Quebecers to give the provincial government a mandate to negotiate sovereignty-association will be held May 20, Premier Rene Levesque announced today.

Levesque told the national assembly the referendum writs had been issued today, and the campaign would last the minimum 35 days permitted under the Referendum Act.

The premier called on Quebecers to vote yes and assured voters that all he was asking for "is a mandate to negotiate a new agreement and not to realize a new agreement."

U.S. wants NATO help as Iran flank heats up

Times News Services

The United States asked its NATO allies Monday to step up their defence efforts, saying Washington may have to divert military power to the Persian Gulf or Indian Ocean in case of hostilities.

Meanwhile, the Soviet Union is reported moving military forces into an area north of Iran, Zbigniew Brzezinski, President Carter's national security adviser, says.

Brzezinski quoted "credible reports" as saying the Soviet forces have moved into the Transcaucasus area, but he gave no figures on the number of troops involved.

In another development, probably related to the Afghan and Iranian crises, Pentagon officials said today that a combat force of Soviet marines has arrived in the Indian Ocean for the first time.

At least 400 marines — called naval infantry — were reported aboard Russia's biggest amphibious assault ship, the 18,000-ton Ivan Rogov. The Rogov entered the Indian Ocean through the Strait of Malacca on Monday after a long voyage from Russia's main Far East naval base at Vladivostok.

An American official in Brussels, said the U.S. suggested long-term measures the members of the NATO could undertake to fill a gap the U.S. armed forces would create if they had to be redeployed. The official asked not to be identified.

He stressed the U.S. "did not discuss in any way, shape or form . . . action in the Persian Gulf," but outlined to its allies how they could help in the NATO area.

President Carter has left open the possibility of the U.S. going to war to assure the continued flow of oil, which Washington considers part of its vital interests.

In an interview Monday night on the Public Broadcasting System's McNeil-Lehrer Report, Brzezinski said the latest Soviet activity is similar to the build-up last December which preceded the Russian military occupation of Afghanistan.

Soviet forces occupied the northern sector of Iran for a year after the end of the Second World War, finally withdrawing only under heavy diplomatic pressure from the United States and other countries.

Commitment of the Russian marines to the tense region follows deployment of a battalion of 1,800 U.S. marines into the Indian Ocean in mid-March aboard a U.S. Navy amphibious warfare group.

In Tehran, the militants holding American hostages in said today humanitarian organizations such as Amnesty International would be allowed to visit the captives.

A militant spokesman made the statement after two Red Cross officials examined the captives' health and living conditions on Monday. One of the Red Cross members, Dr. Bernard Liebeskind, went to Geneva today to report his findings to the International Committee of the Red Cross.

It was the most extensive visit by any foreigners to the captive Americans since militant young Iranians seized the embassy and its staff last Nov. 4.

$2B suit reads like a novel

LOS ANGELES (LAT) — The estranged wife of Saudi Arabian financier Adnan Khashoggi said Monday that her husband provided Swiss bank accounts, prostitutes and other gifts to some California corporate executives whose companies did business in the Middle East kingdom.

The allegations by Soraya Khashoggi, were made in support of her $2.5 billion breach of contract suit in Los Angeles Superior Court last August, seeking half of the $4 billion she said he acquired during their marriage, plus $540 in damages.

The 27-page declaration names three California companies that had business dealings or discussions with Khashoggi and implies that they were among the recipients.

Spokesmen for the companies — Litton Industries, Beverly Hills; Lockheed Corp., Burbank, and Northrop Corp., Los Angeles — either denied the allegations or said they hadn't enough information to comment.

The declaration alleged that Khashoggi:

— Opened numbered Swiss bank accounts that he called "sweeteners" for some California executives.

— Had his employees act as pimps to procure prostitutes for "certain of these California executives."

— Had his employees act as male prostitutes "to have affairs in California with female secretaries of executives of certain of these California companies so that during pillow talk the men (Khashoggi's employees) could learn what the other parties to Adnan's California negotiations were planning."

"YOU HAVE 'ANTI-AMERICAN FEVER'! TAKE TWO HOSTAGES, AND CALL THE NEWS MEDIA IN THE MORNING..."

OTTAWA (CP) — The government will move quickly this week to introduce some of the major legislation promised in Monday's throne speech.

A list of 20 bills scheduled for quick introduction includes legislation to increase the guaranteed income supplements to poor pensioners by $35, a Liberal election promise, and to set up a labor information bureau.

It also includes legislation in the works for more than a year, such as long-planned revisions to the Bank Act, bankruptcy legislation and repealing a trade agreement that contributed to the champagne war with France.

Proposed action in all three areas died before both the May 22 and Feb. 18 elections.

Government House Leader Yvon Pinard said the Liberals also will seek approval to spend money in the next several weeks.

Neither spending estimates for the fiscal year that ended March 31 nor for the one that began April 1 have been approved.

The increased income supplements are to be included in amendments to the Old Age Security Act.

While provincial premiers lamented the lack of specific strategy to cope with ever-rising interest rates, Canadian businessmen and economists were cautiously favorable to the throne speech.

The speech promised Canada that the 1980s would be "a decade of opportunity" and offered three initial stepping stones — help for homeowners, constitutional reform and increased Canadian ownership of industry.

B.C.Premier Bill Bennett said he was not impressed.

"My concern is what's left out," he told a press conference. "I see no answer to the Bank of Canada's high interest rates nor any firm resolution by the present government to deal with the Bank of Canada."

Bennett said the throne speech suggests there is a need for the west to be represented in national institutions and the place to start is the Bank of Canada.

"The promise to reduce the federal deficit is commendable," said Sidney Dolgoy, a senior economist with the Toronto Dominion Bank.

But he expressed doubt it was possible, given the size of the assistance programs proposed by the speech.

A spokesman for the housing industry says he is optimistic about federal government assistance for

Nurse inquiry but no strings

Both sides in the government nurses' dispute have agreed to a proposal by Labor Minister Jack Heinrich to appoint an industrial inquiry commission to bring in non-binding recommendations.

Heinrich, who met with both sides for several hours Monday, said they have agreed to co-operate and make commission hearings meaningful and productive.

Bawlf, McGeer stung by poll

A Times public opinion poll showing Victoria residents overwhelmingly against a fixed link between Vancouver Island and the mainland has stung the scheme's two strongest proponents, former Socred cabinet minister Sam Bawlf and Science Minister Pat McGeer, into strong reaction.

"What the Times has accumlated is very interesting but every politican knows that write-in campaigns are anything but representative of general opinion," McGeer said Monday.

"I would be very surprised if an objective survey were even close to those results."

McGeer suggested such a survey would reverse the result of the Times poll, which found 71 per cent of 1,712 respondents were against the idea of a bridge-tunnel link with the mainland.

McGeer offered no evidence to back his conclusion.

Bawlf, a former member of the Socred cabinet and the prime mover of the fixed-link proposal, goes even further than McGeer.

He promises to provide "scientific" survey results that completely refute the Times' poll.

Bawlf said the mail-in response from Times readers obviously cannot be viewed as a statistically accurate poll of any area of Vancouver Island, including Victoria.

He commissioned a poll of his own 10 days ago and said the preliminary results are very different from the Times suvey.

He declined to give details.

"Let's just say I'm smiling."

Bawlf said his poll is a comprehensive survey conducted by a national polling organization — which he wouldn't name — using sophisticated survey techniques.

Seven questions were put, he said, to a cross-section of the Island population.

Bawlf was critical of the Times' poll being taken be-

Before the Judge

An Alberta teacher was fined a total of $300 Monday in Victoria provincial court for shoplifting offences Friday in downtown Victoria.

Marita Karen Rudolph of Hughenden, Alta., pleaded guilty to theft over $200 and theft under $200.

Crown counsel Robert Mulligan told Judge Blake Allan that security officers at Eaton's spotted Rudolph shortly before 5 p.m. placing articles in a bag and leaving the store without paying for them. When checked, the bag contained a swim suit, a bathing cap, plate, vase, lantern, and carving with a total value of $233.40. Also found was a blouse valued at $24 from Dalmy's, 709 Yates, which was also stolen.

Duty legal aid lawyer Steven Kelliher said the woman, visiting relatives during the spring school break, was in serious need of counselling and did not recognize the emotional and psychological problem she had.

In asking for a conditional discharge, Kelliher said Rudolph would probably lose her job if convicted.

Allan rejected the application for a discharge and fined the woman $200 for the more serious offence and $100 for the other charge.

A White Rock man who pleaded guilty to possession of stolen property was given a 30-day jail term by Allan.

Thomas Brian Jarvis, 33, was also placed on 12 months probation and ordered to take alcohol counselling as directed.

Court was told Sidney RCMP were called late Thursday afternoon in connection with a shoplifter at the Shoppers Drug Mart. When officers arrived, Jarvis had been followed to Safeways nearby, where he walked out with some meat, a bottle of pop and a glass. Police found him in bushes across the street, consuming liquor and intoxicated.

Jarvis had criminal convictions for impaired driving, assaulting a peace officer, theft, and causing a disturbance. He was last convicted Oct. 23, 1979, in Quesnel for theft under $200 and was given a suspended sentence and placed on a year's probation. Mulligan said the probation officer in Quesnel had not seen Jarvis for three months when he was to report once monthly.

Judge Lorne Pearce found a 22-year-old man guilty of causing a disturbance by shouting and levied the maximum $500 fine.

Frank Maxwell Greenwood, 485 Island Highway, was convicted after testimony during a trial which indicated Colwood RCMP had been called to a noisy party on Scafe Road at 4 a.m. Feb. 17.

While officers were breaking up the crowd, Greenwood was one of a group on the street and was yelling and screaming at Constable Peter Backus.

Allan fined a 19-year-old youth $125 and said the amount was less than normal because the youth made a written apology to his victim.

Marc Joseph Lanthier, 643 Speed, pleaded guilty to common assault.

Mulligan said Lanthier and four others were in a taxi in the early hours of Dec. 8 when the female driver heard a bottle break on the road nearby. When she blamed someone in the vehicle for throwing it, Lanthier became upset. The driver stopped her cab and ordered Lanthier out, at which point Lanthier leaned over, grabbed her hair and began hitting her in the head. She was able to call for help over the radio and all the youths fled except Lanthier.

Defence lawyer Lloyd Johnson told the court Lanthier was quite drunk at the time and has since sent a letter of apology to the victim.

Fined $400 for having care and control of a vehicle while having a blood-alcohol reading over .08 was Douglas Ian Newman, 43, of North Vancouver.

Juvenile jail curbs urged

Attorney-General Allan Williams has asked federal Solicitor-General Robert Kaplan to introduce legislation that would allow B.C. to limit the conditions under which juvenile delinquents may be jailed.

The request, revealed in a letter sent last week to the Vancouver Island branch of the John Howard Society, arises from two recent B.C. Supreme Court decisions in which judges have ruled that the provincial government cannot impose age and sentencing restrictions on the incarceration of young offenders.

In the first ruling, delivered Jan. 31, Mr. Justice G.L. Murray struck down Section 44 of the Corrections Act, which states that a juvenile may only be sent to a containment centre if he is at least 14 years old, and considered unsuitable for diversion programs run by the human resources ministry, or has committed an offence that would have led to a penitentiary term had he been an adult.

The second judgment upheld that position, with the result that B.C.'s four juvenile detention centres — Willingdon in Burnaby, Victoria, Chilliwack and Campbell River — now can have prisoners who are seven to 21 years old.

The attorney-general's ministry is appealing the cases but, pending their outcome, overcrowding in the juvenile jails — already acute — has become more critical, corrections officials say.

City lawyer made judge

Victoria lawyer Robert William Metzger has been appointed a provincial court judge, the attorney-general's ministry announced Monday.

Metzger, a University of B.C. graduate who was called to the bar in 1974, will assume his duties next Monday.

Air rifle toter on probation

Roger Artel, 19, was given a suspended sentence in Victoria county court Monday and placed on probation for one year after pleading guilty to possession of an air rifle for a purpose dangerous to the public peace.

Judge Peter Millward also ordered Artel to perform 30 hours of community work service and prohibited him from owning or possession firearms for five years.

The incident April 22 at an Esquimalt Road store arose when another man who was drunk spat at and insulted Artel who mistook him for someone else.

The U.S. government reported today that industrial production dropped 0.8 per cent last month, on the heels of a downward-revised 0.2 per cent decline in February.

General Tire led the active list, unchanged at $13⅛. A 353,700-share block traded at $12¾.

Opening lead — four of spades.

In the ordinary course of events, you seldom get a chance to do anything brilliant during the play. The correct procedure is usually self-evident, and all you have to do to get good results is to do what comes naturally.

But there are occasions when you must do something outstanding to accomplish your goal. Unfortunately, there's no guardian angel to tell you that this is the time to rise and shine; you have to discover the blockbusting play all by yourself.

Here is a case where East had to make a spectacular move to defeat the contract. West led a spade and East cashed the A-Q, after which he had to decide what to play next.

After considering the matter carefully, East played the only card in his hand that could defeat the contract. He led the king of hearts! As a direct result of this play, South went down four after attempting a diamond finesse.

From East's viewpoint, the king of hearts was clearly the right play. He had to credit West with the queen of hearts or ace of clubs. If declarer had both of them, there was virtually no chance of stopping the contract.

Very little harm could come from leading the king of hearts, even if it turned out that South had the queen. In that case, East would still have time to try to find his partner with the ace of clubs when he got on lead with the queen of diamonds.

A club return at trick three, or a low heart return, would have given declarer all the time he needed to establish dummy's diamonds and make the contract. But the king of hearts return, though daring and unusual, was far more likely to do declarer in.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Money is "released" — cash flow resumes. Accent on business procedures, security, investments, fulfillment of desires, romantic illusions. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio and the number 6 figure prominently. One in position of authority is willing to make room for you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Define terms, get rid of preconceived notions, steer clear of self-deception. Accent on special assignment, prestige, willingness to fulfill obligations. Pisces, Virgo persons figure prominently. Honor and reputation are enhanced.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Bring long-range priorities, projects, assignments into focus. Avoid direct confrontations. Plan ahead, submit plans, manuscripts. Get outline on paper, clarify format. Cancer, Capricorn persons play major roles.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You are aided by one you helped in past. Money, borrowing, interest rates, financial prospects of partner or mate — these figure prominently. Fiscal mystery unravels. You gain insights, but not the "easy" way.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Collect data — be analytical, build for durability and security. Follow through on hunch. You will regain sense of direction. Cancer, Leo, Aquarius persons figure prominently. You will rise above petty details, red tape.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Adhere to facts, dig deep for information, persist in quest for "true picture." Accent on home, basic issues, security, the close of a transaction. Be aware of small print, detail, views of older family member.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Give full play to intellectual curiosity. Perceive reasons for recent happenings, events. Emphasis on trips, messages, letter which contains travel data, money exchange information and news of relative in transit.

IF APRIL 16 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are a combination of introspection and aggressiveness. It is not easy for others to know the "real you" — at times, even you search for elusive qualities which would define your character. You often are "accused" of being psychic. You sense when something of importance is about to occur. You are better at helping others than when it comes to aiding yourself. Pisces, Virgo persons play important roles in your life. June will be your most memorable month of 1980. In July, you will be rid of an unnecessary burden.

Each distinct letter in this easy addition stands for a particular but different digit.

It's just a cow, surely not an odd COW! What must its value be?
